Affordable housing, by-law changes dominate hearing

by Arlene Surprenant

Affordable housing and zoning bylaw changes dominated a joint public hearing on the 14 articles to be brought before Wilmington voters at the November 14 special town meeting.

Attorney Joe Courtney fielded questions on Article 12, which proposes rezoning 40 acres on Andover Street from R60 to R20. Courtney said petitioner Al Fiorenza plans to develop a maximum 46 lots on land which is still under consideration for a sludge facility. Though the same article was approved last fall with an amendment to provide 30 percent affordable housing, the attorney general's office ruled the amendment invalid. Courtney explained, in this second attempt to rezone, there would be a linkage proposal included to provide "seed money" for town sponsored housing projects.

Finance Committee Chairman Neil Waisnor doubted whether the linkage concept could be worked out before town meeting. This, said some, could jeopardize the entire article.

Referring to Courtney's comments on the sludge plant, abuttor Dirk Peterson warned against using "scare tactics" to push the article through.

"I would sleep more comfortably when it is rezoned to single family use," replied Courtney, who also abuts the property.

Articles three, four, and five all deal with bylaw changes to increase the town's affordable housing stock and act as a deterrent to developers who plan to use Chapter 774. The articles call for changes in the town's Planned Residential Development law, the inclusionary housing policy, and the dwelling conversions bylaw (to allow accessory apartments), respectively.

Jim Stewart, chairman of the Affordable Housing Task Force, reviewed his board's two-prong approach to the town's lack of lower cost homes. That approach includes a change in zoning bylaws to give financial incentives to developers to build affordable units, and the construction of affordable homes on town owned sites. The latter, said Stewart, would be addressed in the near future.

The inclusionary policy, explained Stewart, would increase density by approximately 50 percent. Along with the increase would be a guarantee of at least 20 percent of the units set aside for affordable housing. Unlike those under state programs, all of those units would be allotted for Wilmington residents.

Any increase in density would only be allowed through a special permit of the Wilmington Planning Board. This would hold true for PRD proposals as well, which traditionally was left in the hands of town meeting.

One appealing aspect of the new PRD law, said Stewart, is the great amount of land set aside as open space. Also, with each PRD project approved, the town would obtain some affordable housing units.

Stewart said though the intention of the changes is not to solely deter

Chapter 774, the state has assured officials that if the town takes responsibility for increasing its stock, "774 would not be the threat it has been in the past."

Courtney took "serious exception" to the new accessory apartments bylaw, which would allow a single family dwelling existing prior to January 1, 1988 to be altered for two family use. Courtney said the change has the potential "to pose a very serious threat to the stability of neighborhoods."

Stewart maintained the law is "an effective way of providing a new type of housing in town."

Town Manager Buzz Stapeczynski said the article basically "legitimizes what has been happening all over town." It also gives the town some control over safety issues and potential health problems related to apartments by forcing homeowners to fall under the building inspector and the Department of Health, said Stapeczynski. He added that according to the town assessor, 37 percent of Wilmington's total housing stock has conversion potential under the proposed law.

While two articles to change the make-up of the Wilmington School Committee were reportedly disap-

Neighbors offer compromise

Howard Speicher, attorney for Joe Guzzo and several neighbors who are appealing a board of appeals decision on Shawsheen River Estates, has made an offer to settle the action.

In an October 13 letter to developer Jay Tighe's attorney Robert Burke, of Callan, Sullivan, and Burke, Speicher said the offer is made "solely in the spirit of compromise and is not intended to be nor is it to be construed as an admission or a waiver of any rights in connection with the pending litigation."

Speicher pointed out that one of his clients' major concerns is the impact of traffic, both from through traffic and traffic which would be generated by the 220 dwelling units within the development. Speicher asked that proponents redesign the roadway to eliminate the through street and have some of the traffic exit from Reed Street and some through Hopkins Street. The attorney also asked that such concessions as an "adequate" construction impact plan, granite curbing, a landscaping plan, and the location of only single family homes by abutments be considered.

Speicher said because of the money already laid out by the plaintiffs, part of the settlement should include reimbursement of those funds "for their (plaintiffs') costs in imposing the conditions that should have been imposed by the board of appeals at no cost to the community."

Mario Alosco of Harold Avenue, one of the two men who initiated the appeal, told the Town Crier that the offer to settle the action is under review by Tighe's lawyers. He said Speicher is planning to go to court if no settlement is reached.

Tax collector will work election night

Wilmington residents will have the opportunity to take care of two birds with one stone on election night. The tax collector's office at the Town Hall will be open until 8 p.m. Tuesday night, enabling people to vote and pay their taxes in one trip.

Real estate tax bills were mailed last week, and must be paid by November 28.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Voters in precincts one, two and five will vote at the Town-Hall. Voters in precincts three, four and six will vote at the Wildwood School.

Committee backs transfer

by Arlene Surprenant

A solution to the school budget crisis using certified free cash received unanimous support from the Wilmington School Committee last Wednesday night. The proposal to have voters approve a transfer of $121,775 from free cash to the fiscal '88 budget to help make up a $159,396 deficit has to be agreed to by selectmen, school committee-men, and members of the finance committee.

On Wednesday, Interim Supt. John Stella said any items which have already been reduced, like late buses, would be reinstated. Also, he added, no cuts would be necessary to the current budget under the new plan.

Tony Accardi inquired about the long term part of the solution to combine the town and school accounting systems. He was told, under the new system, the town accountant would become "a second pair of eyes" and have direct access to the school budget. However, he would not have the authority to change figures or make adjustments.

"I'm very excited (by the plan)," said Accardi as he urged that a public relations effort be made to insure approval by nine-tenths of town meeting November 14.

Chairman Michael Thomas told his board the best part of the proposal is going into town meeting with the support of the finance committee and board of selectmen.

"This way, the children don't lose, the teachers don't lose, the vendors don't lose, the programs don't suffer," he said.

Thomas thanked the other boards for their cooperation "in a very difficult matter."

Free Flu Clinic in Wilmington

The Wilmington Board of Health will hold a free Flu Clinic at the Town Hall, 121 Glen Road Sunday, November 6, from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Persons 65 years or over and persons of any age who have a chronic disease such as heart disease, high blood pressure, asthma, chronic lung disease, diabetes, kidney disease should avail themselves of this service.

Immunization is also recommended for persons who provide essential community service or who may be at increased risk of exposure such as medical care personnel and social protection groups. Any one allergic to eggs or egg products should not take this vaccine.

This year, the Massachusetts Department of Public Health is providing the split flu vaccine which may be used for children under 13 years of age with chronic diseases. Pneumonia vaccine may not be available at this clinic but will be available at a later date, to be announced. Any questions may be directed to the Board of Health at 658-4298.

St. Thomas celebrates 100th anniversary

St. Thomas of Villanova Church last Sunday marked the 100th anniversary of the first Mass in St. Thomas. Bernard Cardinal Law, Archbishop of Boston, was the principal celebrant of a con-celebrated Mass at 4 p.m.

The first Mass at St. Thomas was celebrated by Archbishop John Williams of Boston on October 28, 1888. St. Thomas, at that time, was a mission church without a parish.

The Augustinian Fathers of Andover cared for the church, and it remained a mission until 1919.

Wilmington Catholics had been attending Mass since 1870 in a mission chapel in Ballardvale, established by the Augustinian Fathers. In 1880 the first religious instruction classes were established in the home of Bernard McEnroe, in North Wilmington. Seven children were in the first class. The McEnroe home was at the site now occupied by the Reading Cooperative Bank.

Jeremiah "Jerry" Doucette of Ballardvale Street was in effect the superintendent of that first religious instruction class.

The class, was transferred four years later to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McMahon, on Middlesex Avenue at Church Street. It was in the home, upstairs, where an altar had been established, that the first Mass in Wilmington was celebrated on October 10, 1884. Mass was celebrated there every Thursday by the Reverend Maurice J. Murphy, O.S.A., a visiting pastor from Andover. He also instructed the children.

Anniversary mass

The Archbishop of Boston, Bernard Cardinal Law, was the principal celebrant of the 100th anniversary mass in St. Thomas of Villanova Church on Sunday afternoon in Wilmington.

There were special Masses in the Wilmington Town Hall in 1887 and 1888. The first was on September 18th 1887, the second at Christmas and the third at Easter Sunday, 1888. The celebrant was the Rev. J.J. Ryan, O.S.A., who had succeeded Fr. Murphy as pastor.

Older people, as well as children were attending the Thursday Mass at the McMahon home. Because so many attended there, and at the first Mass in the Town Hall a census of the Catholic population was taken, and it was decided to build a church.

Land was donated by Michael Carlin, and the church erected at today's site of the public library. Jerry Doucette, who was a mason, organized a crew to construct the foundation, starting in October 1887. One year later St. Thomas of Villanova was completed.

St. Thomas became a parish in 1919, and the Reverend Richard Boland became the first pastor. The people of Silver Lake were a part of the parish. North Woburn, now St. Anthony's, was a mission of St. Thomas.

The many summer residents in the Silver Lake area led to additional masses during the summer. The first masses were in a building on Williams Avenue, erected for the Silver Lake Women's Club. Later the masses were in Thompson's Grove, which became the site for St. Dorothy's Church after World War II.

Father Boland lived in a house at 16 School Street, across from the Buzzell Senior Center for two years. Then he purchased the Thomas Bond estate, the home which became the Rectory of St. Thomas about 1921.

The writer, a tow headed seven or eight-year-old, can remember Father Boland, returning from his church clad in his cassock. Sometime he would stop at the McMahon home for a visit.

Father Boland had, it is said, visions of a new church, a new school and a convent. He made an addition to St. Thomas Church in 1925.

It was when Father George Brennan was pastor, in 1948 that Villanova Hall was constructed. What is now the foyer of that hall was the barn of the Bond estate.

Father Albert J. Shea began to use Villanova Hall as a church about 1951, and transferred the hall into the former church building.

The Reverend Edmund J. Croke became the parish priest in 1954. He arrived in town to hear that St. Thomas Parish was to be divided. The Silver Lake area, plus South Tewksbury became St. Dorothy's Parish.

Father Joseph Leahy, parish priest of St. Dorothy's Church took up residence with the priests of St. Thomas, until his new church was completed.

Ground was broken for the new St. Thomas Church in February 1960, and the church was dedicated by Richard Cardinal Cushing on October 24, 1960.

TMHS open house

Activities related to American Education will be held in Tewksbury's Public Schools during the school day. The purpose of these activities is to offer parents the opportunity to observe what is going on in the schools.

American Education Week is November 14 through the 18th. The senior high school will have open house 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 15.

Following the issuance of report cards open houses will be held in the schools from 7 to 9 p.m. as follows:

Junior High School, Thursday, Dec. 1; Loella F. Dewing School, Tuesday, Dec. 6; Louise D. Trahan School, Tuesday, Dec. 6; Heath Brook School, Thursday, Dec. 8; North Street School, Monday, Dec. 5th.

Library set for story hour

Tewksbury's Patten Public Library will begin a four week session of pre-school story hours Thursday, November 17 and Friday, November 18. Three story hours are conducted each week, at 10 a.m. on Thursdays and at both 10 and 11 a.m. on Fridays. Each of the three groups is limited to 25 children, who must be residents of Tewksbury. Proof of age is required.

Telephone registration for this session will take place Friday, November 4, beginning at 10 a.m. Please call the library at 851-6071 for further information.

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce Brisbois

Certified Public Accountant
TAX SAVINGS IS A HOME OFFICE

If you work at home, you can deduct a lot of home office expenses on your tax return, but you have to play by the rules.

According to the Internal Revenue Service, a home office must be used exclusively and regularly for business. The "office" may be just a desk and a filing cabinet in the corner of the dining room, a separate room, or an entire wing of the house. What's important is that the space must be dedicated solely to the work you do there. "Regularly" expects that you put at least 10 to 12 hours a week into the effort; and to be a "business" and not a hobby, your enterprise must show a profit in three or more of the last five years. If it's not your own business, you'll need a note from your boss saying you are REQUIRED to work at home.

What fraction of your home does the office take, by rooms or square feet? That's the portion of the household expenses you can deduct, in addition to direct expenses for your work.

Meeting tape erased, says Capuano

Anthony Capuano of Ring Avenue is now checking into possible civil rights violations in his attempts to have trucks restricted on Salem Street in North Wilmington.

After initiating the effort to block heavy trucking on Salem Street late last spring, Capuano found that town officials were looking at his fence to see if it violated a town by-law for blocking the view of an intersection.

Last month, the town took him to court on a complaint over the fence. He is now scheduled to appear in court again on January 10. He has pledged to fight the matter to superior court, if necessary.

The fence, said Capuano, has been there for 16 years. There was never a problem until he initiated the effort to ban heavy trucking. Now, all of a sudden, the town says his fence is a problem, even though there are no reports of accidents at the corner of Ring Avenue and Salem Street.

Although the matter is being taken to court by the police, Capuano said that in no way does he blame Police Chief Bobby Stewart.

Capuano said he blames the entire matter on Jim Stewart, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, who lives on the same street. And likewise, he is not at all happy with Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski.

Capuano had requested a tape of the selectmen's meeting of September 12. He was told that it would cost $10 per tape. When he got the first tape, it did not contain the entire meeting. So he bought two more tapes. After listening to all three tapes, Capuano found that the portion of the meeting he wanted had been erased.

"I'm not saying they run the entire town wrong. I just think they handled this very poorly," said Capuano.

Tewksbury selectmen last week voted to not go along with the truck ban. Capuano, though, is not critical of the way the matter has been handled in that town. He said he intends to press the matter as a weight restriction for trucks over five tons, which is what he originally intended.

REFERENDUM CHECKLIST

Keep this handy checklist with you on Election Day, Nov. 8, and save yourself some time in the voting booth.

Question One: Legislative pay raise repeal

Yes ☐ Take no action No ☐ Repeal the pay raise

Question Two: the Prevailing Wage Law

Yes ☐ Repeal PWL No ☐ Keep the wage law

Question Three: Humane farm animal treatment

Yes ☐ Regulate by law No ☐ Leave it alone

Question Four: Stop nuclear waste generation

Yes ☐ Close the plants No ☐ Leave it as is Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Question Two, which seeks to repeal the Massachusetts Prevailing Wage Law, will go down to defeat next Tuesday due to the fact that proponents have been overwhelmed by an impressive advertising campaign waged by organized labor, which has coined the now familiar phrase, "Question Two bad for you, vote no on Question Two."

Ironically, those who seek repeal call themselves the Fair Wage Committee. Comprised of the Mass. Municipal Association, Citizens for Limited Taxation, Associated Builders and Contractors, and many others, Fair Wage Committee spokesperson Ginny Buckingham recognizes the fact that "the unions have had an open cash register" and have outspent the proponents of the ballot question by a four to one margin.

The prevailing wage law, which requires municipalities to pay contractors the highest, prevailing union wage for any public works project, costs taxpayers $212 million annually, according to Fair Wage spokesperson Buckingham. Buckingham goes on to say that, "A yes vote will create the same competitive system that now exists in private industry."

But since Labor Day the effort for voters' support has hardly been competitive. The Fair Wage Committee got off to a slow start, and hasn't been able to compete with the union organization, which is grassroots. And, Ginny Buckingham noted that, "The state's mayors have made a political decision that they are concerned about their political futures and have sided with the unions."

One municipal official who doesn't share this concern is Worthington Selectman Steve Kulik. Kulik has been an active member of the Fair Wage Committee and insists he is not anti-labor. Instead, he cites the story of a local fire station as reason to vote yes on Two.

Worthington is presently building a fire station, and as an experiment the contractor gave two bids, with the lower representing costs to the town without the prevailing wage law. Kulik says the difference was a $70,000 savings for the community without prevailing wage, and that a yes vote on Question Two "might not lower taxes, but would still save tax dollars on public works projects."

On the flip-side of this issue is Lesley Israel, spokesperson for the state AFL/CIO, which along with a number of other groups has formed the effective and highly organized Committee for the Quality of Life. The committee urges a 'no vote' on Question Two. According to Israel, the prevailing wage law "was established 75 years ago to prevent public works from being done by unskilled labor." Israel goes on to say that the wage law requires contractors to submit reports on how tax dollars are spent, and that Question Two would eliminate this.

Israel explained that the wage law compels contractors to report to the state on everything from the certification requirements of workers to information on affirmative action. Israel also noted that because of the record-keeping requirements of the prevailing wage law, many contractors have been discovered paying workers low wages while simultaneously charging cities and towns the prevailing wage rate.

And both sides in this fight seem to be criticizing the other for fund-raising tactics. While Selectman Steve Kulak said union members were "pressured" to donate $50.00 each, Israel says the Builders and Contractors are giving diamond stick-pins to those donating $10,000 or more to the Fair Wage Committee.

With a multitude of "Vote No on Two" stickers riding automobile bumpers, it's not unrealistic to predict that the Question Two 'no votes' will beat the 'yes votes' next Tuesday.

On points of financing, strategy, and sheer organization, the unions had this one sewn up months ago.

25 years ago

The October 31, 1963 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Hurricane Ginny passing off shore from New England Monday brought relief to the parched lands of Wilmington and a series of automobile accidents and power outages. Dropping 2.02 inches, it was the first rain in town since October 3.

The school committee wrote to the permanent building committee saying that it felt the next school built in Wilmington should be an intermediate in the western part of town.

Silver Lake Hardware was offering full three channel aluminum screen and storm windows from $10.95.

Pictured was Androniki Gagliione of Burlington Avenue displaying part of her handiwork exhibited at Sweetheart Plastics open house for employees and their families. Admiring the work was Selectman Charles Black.

Environmental notes

Our source of water

by George R. Allan
If you asked the average person where his water supply comes from, the most likely answer would be - "from the kitchen faucet." This simplistic answer underscores the lack of knowledge most people have about the source of their drinking water. If we are to protect our water supply, we need to understand it first.

There are two basic sources of water supply - surface water and ground water. Surface water includes lakes and rivers. Ground water is the unseen water that lies beneath the land surface.

Wilmington and approximately 75 percent of Massachusetts communities obtain their water supply from ground water. Groundwater can be found under most land surfaces, however, not all ground water can be withdrawn for public use.

The MWRA supplies Quabbin Reservoir water to over 40 communities. Contrary to what some people think, Wilmington does not and never has received its water from the MWRA.

Wilmington's municipal wells tap underground reservoirs called aquifers, which were created thousands of years ago by the melting glaciers of the ice age. The term "aquifer" refers to the water bearing underground soils, typically sand and gravel, that are permeable enough to yield water to springs or wells at a rate that makes them a viable water supply. An aquifer may be likened to a saturated sponge.

Municipal wells penetrate the sand and gravel aquifers and terminate at bedrock. Unlike most private wells, they are not "rock wells." Typical well depths are 35 to 60 feet. The yields vary from 200 to 700 gallons per minute (GPM).

Wilmington's seven active wells produce an average of 3.2 million gallons per day (MGD). During a hot summer day, over five MGD is pumped.

The ultimate source of ground water is precipitation that percolates into the ground and saturates the pore spaces of the soils. Only a portion of the 42 inches of annual precipitation becomes ground water. On the average, about 40 percent recharges the ground water. The remainder runs off to surface water or is taken up by plants.

Ground water moves slowly until it discharges into a wetland, river or lake. It travels only a few feet per day. Because of this slow velocity, it can take decades to clean a contaminated aquifer - decades and hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Years ago, ground water was considered pristine. Today, however, the susceptibility of aquifers to contamination has become painfully clear to many towns. Wilmington, Tewksbury, Woburn, No. Reading, and Burlington have had a well shutdown due to contamination.

Since ground water does not recognize town lines, protection needs to be on a regional basis. Communities need to work together to protect this unseen but valuable water resource.

editorial

Question Four: Nuke shutdown?

by Bill Conlon

The fourth and final referendum question on the November 8 ballot is a nuclear power versus anti-nuclear power question, but the motion is cleverly worded.

Question Four asks voters to outlaw the production of electricity at any nuclear power plant in which nuclear waste is generated as a by-product. Everyone is opposed to nuclear waste, naturally, but the referendum would impact the state much more than the simple question would imply.

Massachusetts has two functional nuclear power plants -- Yankee Atomic in Rowe, and Pilgrim in Plymouth. Pilgrim has been closed for two years during a multi-million dollar refitting, while Yankee Rowe has been quietly humming along for the past 25 years.

Electricity is a badly needed commodity in New England, and particularly in Massachusetts. During the record-breaking heat of this past July, demand for electricity also reached new peaks. Voltage reductions (brownouts) were imposed by the utilities in a number of places to spread out the supply, and the continued building boom in New England can only make things worse in the years to come. Very simply, we need all the power we can get.

If the referendum passes, however, Yankee Rowe and Pilgrim will be shut down for keeps. New England will permanently lose the 4.5 billion kilowatts of electricity, and that supply will need to be replaced, somehow. The two plants, when operating, account for 20 percent of the electricity generated within Massachusetts, with the rest coming primarily from oil-fired boilers. Replacement of the nuclear power will require burning an estimated six million barrels of oil annually, with the incumbent costs of paying for the oil needed and the still-unpriced environmental damages left behind.

If the Question is voted into law, the owners of the nuclear power plants will have to be reimbursed for their losses. Independent study has shown that a Question Four shutdown may cost from $2 billion to $4 billion, and Massachusetts taxpayers would have to pay it.

Those pushing for Question Four warn that a Chernobyl-type disaster could happen at any time, and cite Pilgrim as one of the worst managed nuke plants in the country. They add that Yankee's containment vessel, the steel and concrete shell around the reactor that is designed to contain any radioactive leakage, is too thin.

At some point in the future, we may have environmentally safe means of generating commercial levels of electricity, such as solar, fusion, and space-based systems. But that day is far in the future.

A "yes" vote on Question Four would stop nuclear power plants from generating nuclear waste, in effect shutting the plants down. A "no" vote would allow Yankee and Pilgrim to remain.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

Many of you are discouraged by the selection in this year's Presidential race and I would like to set the record straight on what really should bother us.

It doesn't annoy me to listen to the winey voice of George Bush; however, when he's tagged with the "Wimp Factor," that's when I must draw the line. It took guts for Bush to choose Dan Quayle, a one-time draft dodger who played more golf in college than time spent with his academics; and even more courage for the vice president to use, "golly-gee" and "swell" where there are only a few people left in the world who feel comfortable with those terms. A couple of questions which bother many folks are: "What did the vice president know and when did he know it?" That doesn't pertain as much to Contra-gate as it does to where he was on Pearl Harbor Day. Also, what does he mean by "a thousand points of light"? That wouldn't be one of those silly Bostonian phrases alluding to the White House zodiac, would it?

Let's get the facts straight on Dan Quayle. Lloyd Bentsen said that Dan Quayle was no Jack Kennedy. How can Quayle be Kennedy when Quayle's driver's license reads Dan Quayle? To make matters worse, Quayle referred to himself as a Robert Redford look alike. If a President Bush should croak during his term in office and Quayle steps in, will he suffer an identity crisis? Quayle said he'd say a prayer if that day should come about. I'll be wearing sackcloth and ashes.

Dukakis' strategy of talking about the issues was a bad move. During these times, intelligence takes a back seat while untamed passion does the driving. It's the Morton Downey Jr. age. The Governor's problem in his campaign was that he didn't wrap himself up in the American flag. It works. Another point that hurt the Duke was his lack of charisma. The only way to know if Dukakis has it would be for him to say or do something on "Nightline" to make Ted Koppel flip his wig; however, the other candidate isn't much to sneeze at either.

Which brings me to my conclusion. If both tickets don't excite voters then who do we have to blame; those who don't vote or those who think that voting is enough? Though, to vote would be doing more than just sitting around watching the Tyson-Givens fight.

Douglas R. McEvoy

Dear Larz:

I hope this doesn't trigger a "letter to the editor war" but I wanted to respond to a few issues raised in Mr. McNally's letter to the editor last week which dealt with the Vassallo issue and McNally's son. First, I don't want to play judge here. Like Mr. McNally himself, I wasn't at the

P.D. when his son received a cut lip, and I don't want to pretend that I was a fly on the wall. I wasn't. Instead, I wanted to quickly mention some points that were missing.

First, Mr. McNally isn't too likely to be objective here. It is his own son, who has had a lot of trouble with the police, and there's a lot of natural emotions involved. Second, he seems to forget that the paper did cover the Vassallo story. I specifically remember reading Arlene Surprenant's articles on the local hearings.

As to your transcript of the civil service hearing, I would have been more interested to read the transcript of the local hearing. I have heard of officers defending Mr. Vassallo's actions. Secondly, one of the officers who testified against Vassallo is related to a selectman. This must have put the hearing officer, the town manager, in an awkward position.

Think of it this way, Larz. You're accused of a crime, and the person testifying against you before the judge is the uncle of one of the men who appoints and employees that judge. Would you be comfortable with that, or uncomfortable? I think I would be very uncomfortable, and would have sought another hearing officer.

From the beginning, that's what I have seen as the big issue here. Not whether Vassallo is right or wrong, and not how appropriate the punishment was, and not what the Civil Service Commission thinks in Boston. Instead, I've wondered about how fair our own local hearing process is when an officer is brought up on charges.

The hearing officer, who I guess by law is always the town manager, should be seen as completely free from any undue pressure. That way, the public can have complete confidence in rulings, without having to worry about any potential of undue political pressure.

I don't have any evidence that any pressure, at all, was brought on the town manager. I want to make that very, very clear, Larz. But, isn't government supposed to avoid even the impression of anything inappropriate?

I don't know much about possible alternatives. However, I don't think there should be a policy for someone else to be hearing officer who is completely free from any political pressure.

Sincerely,

Quick lube facility to locate in Wilmington Plaza

by Arlene Surprenant
A preventive maintenance type auto service may locate on the south side of Wilmington Plaza if voters agree to change the zoning bylaws to allow such a facility in a general business zone. Proponents are bringing up the change at the November 14 special town meeting.

Residents Barbara and Harold Collins hope to franchise a Speedee Oil Change and Tune-Up operation on the site. According to attorney Robert Cohan, this is a new type of business in the greater Boston area. Because it is new, said the attorney, "zoning bylaws haven't dealt with it yet."

Advantages of the quick lube operation, according to proponents, include a safe method of disposing oil taken from cars, an addition to "diminishing" auto services in town, and free service to police cruisers. The building would be open to the public from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Selectmen Chairman Jim Stewart advised proponents to check with the fire department to make sure their proposed storage of oil is allowed under the town's tank bylaw.

Wilmington school news

Wildwood School

Spooks and ghosts abounded as teachers and students dressed for a Halloween assembly at the Wildwood School. The program opened with a scary creative dance performed by fourth and fifth graders. The Wildwood chorus, under the direction of Priscilla Park, sang several Halloween pieces. Festivities ended with two scary tales performed by Betty Lehrman, Wildwood's artist in residence. A spooky, happy time was had by all.

Our next Pac meeting will be November 9 at 3:30 p.m. in the cafeteria. Babysitting will be provided.

On Election Day, Nov. 8, the Wildwood Pac will sponsor a bake sale and raffle. Among our raffles will be a $100 cash prize, a fresh turkey, just in time for Thanksgiving, and a homemade afghan. Be sure to stop at our table to buy some homemade goodies and take a chance on these great prizes while you're at Wildwood to cast your vote.

There was a great turnout Saturday to plant daffodil bulbs at Wildwood. Thank you to all parents and children who helped. Watch for our great spring display!

Wilmington High School

Note: The following is a letter in praise of WHS students.

You must be very proud of the young adults who represented Wilmington High School at the funeral of Mrs. Mildred Cavanaugh Wednesday, October 26.

The show choir, band, flag squad, altar boys and the rest of the students who were there out of respect for Millicanne and the Cavanaugh Family were wonderful and should be praised for their participation on this solemn occasion.

Shawsheen Tech

Over 50 lucky Shawsheen Tech students will be spending their February vacation in Bormio, Italy for the "skiing vacation of a lifetime."

According to teacher Barbara Ahern, one of the organizers of the trip, this is the third straight year the school is sponsoring a European ski - shopping package.

The trip price of $839 includes: roundtrip air fare on Alitalia Airlines, motorcoach transfers from Milan to Bormio, seven nights accommodations at the Hotel Vallecetta, meals, all day ski passes, and store and lesson discounts.

The 1985 World Ski championships were held in Bormio, Bormio, located in the Valtellina Valley in northern Italy, is the site of churches, palazzos, museums, Stelvio National Park, shops, and the famous old Roman Baths.

North Intermediate School

The North Intermediate School has initiated a Student of the Week program that selects different students each week in recognition of their contribution to school, home, community and fellow students.

The first teacher nominated Students of the Week are:

Grade eight, Joy Michaud; grade seven, Steven Shaw; grade six, Michele Fortes.

These students were selected by a committee of their teachers for their thoughtfulness, concern and caring attitude toward their fellow students and teachers.

Friday, October 28, was Costume Day at the North. Each homeroom selected a student and at the end of the day three students were chosen out of 15. The winners were:

First prize, James Doucette; second, Jason Morin; third, Jane Carol.

West Intermediate School

In recognition of National Geography Week (Nov. 13-19) and to bring attention to the importance of geography in our school's curriculum, the seventh grade geography students at the West Intermediate School are proud to present World Cultures Week!

The following events will be taking place during that week. Family and friends are cordially invited to take part in the celebration:

Monday (Nov. 14) Map Making Contest; student maps will be on display in the library and judging will take place during the day by a panel of staff volunteers.

Tuesday (Nov. 15) Folktales from Around the World will be read in the cafe at 10 a.m. Round two of the Student Geography Bee will be held in the cafe at 1 p.m.

Wednesday (Nov. 16) Travel Posters from Around the World will be on display in the corridor on the first floor and will be judged by a panel of staff volunteers. The final round of the Student Geography Bee will be held in the cafe at 1 p.m.

Thursday (Nov. 17) World Cultural Centers will be set up in the cafe and student displays will show the variety of cultures that exist in the world today plus a few surprises.

Friday (Nov. 18) A Cultural Celebration will be held in each of the seventh grade geography classes. Foods, games, music and a variety of other cultural activities will demonstrate the multicultural nature of today's world.

The Computer Club at the West Intermediate School will meet Mondays after school in the computer lab - room 200. The Computer Club will provide students with an opportunity to use a computer to do their homework, practice programming, or play educational games. Mr. Michalski, the club's advisor, will be on hand to provide software and help to interested students. Because of limited space, the number of students in the lab will be kept under 15.

There has been a time change in the production of "La Tuna" at the West Intermediate School. The performance will be held November 9 at 7 p.m. The previous time was 7:30 p.m.

The West Intermediate Library has plans to begin a trial reading project with a special collection of award-winning books highly recommended for this age level. The collection will consist largely of paper back books. Students who participate in the program will be given computer-generated record sheets to keep a record of which titles have been read. Sixth graders could conceivably read all titles between now and the close of their middle school years. Students can even test themselves by use of available study guides to see how well they read and remembered the stories.

The library computer is being used to process all incoming books. Its use applies to making cards and pockets for new paperback books. This speeds the new books to the students in just a matter of hours. In addition, for the more expensive items, the small computer can also handle more professional processing requirements.

Students can visit the library during their lunch hour. Mrs. Cox's sixth graders are using the library to find information for individualized reports on aspects of the Roman Empire. Students are teaching themselves how to use encyclopedia indexes, the card catalog, and other special informational sources.

Other students are using the library to research paintings of famous artists, the lives and works of famous musical composers, and topics in the French and Indian War periods. The reading classes are also using the library to find information on their individualized topics.

Trips approved by school board

by Arlene Surprenant

Two out-of-state student trips were unanimously approved by members of the Wilmington School Committee at their meeting Wednesday night. Both a four day trip to Washington D.C. and an eight day trip to Colorado were recommended by Interim Supt. John Stella as enrichment and leisure activities "essential" to the growth and development of Wilmington youngsters.

Lorraine Kalil, Director of Performing and Fine Arts, said approximately 45 "highly motivated" members of the Show Chorus will travel to Washington to take part in a concert to raise funds for homeless children. Wilmington students will join en mass with youngsters in all 50 states.

The trip is planned for April 27-30 and will cost $274 per person. Fundraisers, such as the sale of Christmas wreaths, will help defray the cost. The students themselves will pick up the remaining expense, Kalil said.

Teachers Frank Birmingham and William Peabody, who lead the Wilmington Ski Club, told committee members of the Show Chorus will travel to Washington to take part in a concert to raise funds for homeless children. Wilmington students will join en mass with youngsters in all 50 states.

Usually, the teachers plan a winter trip to a New England ski resort. This is the first year they will take pupils out of the area.

The $790 cost will be borne entirely by students and their parents. For those who find the price a bit steep, there will be other trips to nearby ski areas throughout the winter, the men said.

Manager seeks $14K for planning director

If Wilmington voters approve a transfer of $14,000 at the special town meeting in two weeks, the planning board could have a new director by January 1.

With the unexpected resignation of Planning Coordinator Sandra Murphy, Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said he moved up plans for the new full time position from 1990 to 1989.

The Planning Director would provide the planning board with advice on such things as subdivision regulations, land use controls, and zoning and affordable housing programs. The director would supervise the planning board office, administer planning activities, prepare zoning amendments, and advise landowners, developers, and citizens on land use issues, said Stapczynski.

The $14,000 is the salary for half a year. If voters approve the article, the position will be posted in local papers.

Nicki Johnson steps down after 16 years

Nicki Johnson informed the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority last week she would be leaving the board -- and the state -- on November 10.

Mrs. Johnson, a 16-year veteran of the board, and her husband will be moving to Barefoot Bay, Florida where they will spend their winters. Summers will be spent in their summer home in Wolfeboro, New Hampshire.

"I will miss the contact with this board. It has been exciting to see the improvement since we've started," Mrs. Johnson told the Town Crier after her last official meeting. Optimistically she added "I hope I'll see the new road and the new town center (complete) when I drive through Wilmington five years from now." The redevelopment authority has been responsible for coming up with an alternate plan for the reconstruction of the bridge and roadways at the Route 129/38/62 intersection.

Mrs. Johnson served as secretary for the WRA. Since she is a state appointed member of the board, her vacancy will be filled by the Executive Office of Communities and Development. Members of the authority will make their recommendations to the state.

She and her husband Harry lived on High Street in North Wilmington for 30 years. After raising a large family, Nicki returned to the business world as a bank teller, later as a branch manager. She is presently the manager of the Commercial Bank and Trust Co. at Wilmington Plaza, and assistant treasurer of the bank. She will retire from that position on Thursday.

She served two terms as president of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, initiating a study of Wilmington's relationship with the Reading Municipal Light Dept. That study has led to the town of Wilmington taking steps to possibly break away from Reading Light to form its own electric department.

Lions Club donation

No tricks, no treat Edgar Avenue visitor was most unwelcome

Like the Willie Nelson song of what do they do in Texas Saturday nights, Edgar Avenue has its own version of celebrating Saturday night. While two residents were walking up the street Friday late, they spied a black and white kitten, which at second look turned out to be an old fashioned polecat - skunk to you.

They watched it stagger back and forth and then left. Saturday morning the neighborhood was aploomb with excitement as they saw the skunk staggering back and forth in the backyard of one of the resident's home. He would stagger a foot or two then slump to the side. No one would dare go near the animal, fearing rabies, or the one weapon skunks are noted for.

After an hour of this attraction, someone thought of phoning the police. "No way" said one reply. The police don't handle this. No police would report, according to the man on the desk. A half dozen calls to the police, with still no solution. Someone called the dog officer, but he was away and the police answering for his department, again reiterated, "No way, Jose."

Someone thought of calling the SPCA...there is none listed in Lowell! The nearest was in Methuen. They were not going to come out. One Edgar Avenue caller was told by police headquarters that "You have to call the Human (sic) department. He corrected himself to "Humane" and said he had no number to call. So much for the report.

So Saturday afternoon was spent in watching a skunk in his final death struggle while no humane department could be found. Mercifully, the skunk expired during the cold night and burial services were held by the homeowner the next day.

So now the neighborhood is quiet. When friends call and ask, "what are you doing Saturday night?" they reply, "Just watching a poor skunk die." Without a scent.

The Anne Sullivan Center of Tewksbury was pleased last week to accept a donation of $700 from the Tewksbury Lions Club, to be used to purchase one of the six "Kids on the Block" puppets. The puppets, which are currently on loan from the state department of education, are used to teach youngsters about the physically handicapped. Lions club president Dennis Toscano is seen here handing the check to Renaldo, the blind member of the puppet troupe, who accepted the donation with a little help from Laurie Blair, coordinator of the Anne Sullivan Center's outreach and training team. Standing in back are Tewksbury Lions Charles Coppola and Charles Stella.

Over 3,000 Massachusetts Scientists and Engineers Urge a NO vote on 4

"Ballot Question 4 would permanently shut down the generation of electric power by existing Massachusetts' nuclear electricity plants.

It is an important issue. Nuclear energy supplies 33% of our region's electricity. Our state's nuclear electricity plants alone provide nearly 20% of our in-state power supply.

Of course, the issue goes beyond the threat of electricity shortages, and economic consequences.

It is important to consider the complex scientific questions involved, including the adverse environmental and health effects of the likely replacements to nuclear energy — oil and coal.

When looking at the scientific issues, please consider the views of my colleagues in Massachusetts' scientific community, who overwhelmingly recommend a No vote on Question 4.

—Thank you."

NBC News to survey Tewksbury voters

A few voters on Election Day in Tewksbury may have an additional decision to make.

Would they be willing to help NBC News in conducting a voter survey, as part of a national effort?

NBC News has plans to approach a few voters at the Precinct Two voting place, at the Trahan School, to ask who they voted for and why, and to seek their views on some of the major issues of the day.

In a letter from NBC News to the Town Clerk, dated September 13, the request was made to allow NBC news to conduct a secret ballot of voters leaving Precinct Two, and a request for an NBC representative to enter the counting location to obtain the final vote tally for that precinct.

Margaret Campbell, who handles polling operations for NBC News in New York, said the information gathering would see survey takers at the precinct, but not TV cameras. She said the information from the survey will become part of NBC's nationwide coverage of the vote, but she added that such surveys will be conducted in each of the 50 states.

Tewksbury's Precinct Two just happens to be part of NBC's plan for coverage of the national vote. However, questions have been raised about the survey itself.

Town Clerk Liz Carey said that existing state laws are written to keep all things political away from voters as they enter the precincts. No signs, banners or any political trappings are allowed within 150 feet of voting places, Carey said, and town by-laws go even further, by banning any loitering within 150 feet of the precinct.

"My goal is to protect the voters," Carey said, noting that she is very serious about maintaining "the sanctity of the voting booth."

But NBC news has freedom of the press, as granted by the First Amendment, and the Town Clerk said the network may have every right to enter the precinct.

"They do have certain privileges that others don't have," she said.

Carey said she would be making a survey of the Trahan School this week with Town Counsel Charles Zaroulis, and that she wanted to review some earlier legal cases to see what precedents exist.

Both Carey and NBC stressed that the voter exit survey will be purely voluntary, and that voters could decline to take part, if they wished.

As with all primary and national elections, Tewksbury's vote count will be sent by phone to the national news wire services as soon as the numbers are available.

IF YOU'RE A BUSINESS IN SEARCH OF A BANK...

"It's the personal contact we receive from Arlington Trust that makes the difference."

Guenter and Illa Schank, owners of Teak Imports, Inc., Middleton, MA, explain the craftsmanship illustrated in a hand carved Burmese teakwood elephant to John R. O'Brien, first vice president, Arlington Trust Company.

Guenter and Illa Schank, owners of Teak Imports, Inc., Route 114, Middleton, MA believe that the secret to success is service whether you sell furniture or banking services. That's why they like doing business with Arlington Trust Company.

"It's the personal contact we receive from Arlington Trust that makes the difference," Guenter explained. "For instance, John O'Brien, our Arlington Trust Company loan officer, has simplified a complicated procedure by enabling us to transfer money over the telephone from our credit line into our account; from there, the money is automatically transferred to our broker's account in Denmark, who distributes it to over 300 factories in Europe. With the difference in monetary exchange values, this is very convenient and uncomplicated for us. That's why we feel Arlington Trust Company is a personal bank with personal service."

Since opening the store in 1971, Guenter and Illa have developed Teak Imports into a veritable showplace of the finest examples of Danish design and workmanship. "Whatever you see in our store," Illa explained, "Guenter and I personally hand picked from factories throughout Scandinavia, Germany, and Singapore. People appreciate this and come from all over the country to shop with us."

Arlington Trust Company has been serving the needs of businesses for nearly 100 years. If you're a business in search of a bank, come to Arlington Trust.

Nancy Desmond, special agent

"I was just the chick, sitting in the back seat"

Twelve years ago Nancy Desmond of Tewksbury was working as a recreational specialist, in a New York reform school. Today she is a Tewksbury resident, working as an aerobics instructor at the Northmeadow Racquet & Health Club. Married, she is the mother of two daughters. She is also a piano teacher.

Nancy told of the interim period, and what happened in that time, at the Rotary Club of Wilmington on October 26. At least in part it served to make some of those Rotarians hold onto their seats.

Nancy was a Special Agent, serving with the U.S. Treasury Department. She served in the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF). It was a wild life, involving special training.

Part of the training was a six week course of rigorous physical exercise. Her past experience as an aerobics instructor helped. She had to do 90 situps or 60 pushups, in a two minute period of time. Also required were a lot of five mile runs, which took a lot of wind.

There were two females who took on the job, at about the same time. Pay Grade five, which was the pay scale, was for $15,000 a year. There was also a 25 percent special pay for hazardous duty, which also involved having to do extra duty every week.

Nancy Desmond

The former special agent of the U.S. Treasury Department tells Wilmington Rotarians of her adventures with smugglers of "Saturday Night Specials." Beside her is president elect Bill Doyle of the Wilmington Club.

Nancy told of life in Miami, at about the time of the Cuban boat lift. That was when a lot of Cubans were allowed to leave that island country, from a place called Mariel. Those people were called "Marielitos."

Castro also sent along many of his incorrigible jail prisoners, hardened criminals. They were involved with guns, and with drugs. Machine gun battles in the streets of Miami were common as a result.

Vice president Bush was sent down there, in charge of a 45 person team, to clean up the local situation with regard to Miami. Nancy was a part of that team.

In most situations in which special agents of the ATF were involved suspects would surrender, when faced with arrest. Such was not the case with the Marielitos. They preferred to shoot it out.

For those Marielitos the situation was a paradise. They were not interested in going back to Cuba, and Castro. Two members of the team in which she worked were killed in the line of duty.

Nancy also served as a part of the guardian force, during two presidential elections. The U.S. Secret Service guards the presidential candidates. ATF agents also served with the Secret Service, and Nancy was one of those ATF agents.

During the time in Miami Nancy had a hair raising experience when she was delegated to go along with an informer, who was to meet with a "Mr. Big" in the gun running world. It was relative to the illegal sales of guns. Nancy was to be the "girl friend" of the informer.

She had a hidden voice recorder, to take down all the conversation. She was armed, with a pistol.

She was to be just a gum chewing chick, sitting in the back seat of the car, while the two men sat in front and talked business. She was prepared to bust into the conversation if things were not going the right way.

"Frankie, you haven't taken me to the movies, like you promised!"

Nancy worked in Boston during the case of the infamous "Sam Melville - Jonathan Jackson Brigade." She was to investigate the bombing of the Suffolk County courthouse.

It was Nancy who found out that the Brigade had been buying their guns in Kittery, Maine. It is easy to buy guns in Maine. There are no questions, and there was no waiting period.

The information she gathered led to the arrests of the gang.

About her last case was the sending of unmarked pistols (Saturday Night Specials) for Miami to New York. Such pistols could be bought in Miami for $30, and commanded a price of $300 in New York.

She investigated by going through a large number of file cards, telling of sales of guns in Miami. Each card was for the sale of five or more guns. She totaled up to 400 guns, for one name which turned up frequently.

The suspect had a volkswagen, with New Jersey plates. One Friday afternoon the suspect carried hundreds of guns, out to his car - about $10,000 worth.

She followed him - all alone. He transferred to a truck, and went north.

Nancy was calling for help on her radio, but got no answer. The ATF agents were out on a big job. It looked as if Nancy was going to follow that truck all the way to New York.

But when she got to Boca Raton (Florida) there were special agents of the ATF who responded to her radio calls. They were on a job in that city.

The truck was stopped and searched. There was nothing but bananas, in back. Then the agents looked in front, behind the driver's seat. There they found 400 Saturday Night Specials.

The numbers had been filed off the guns, but the ATF was able to "remark" the numbers, and identify them. They were going, it turned out, to an address in the Bronx, but they never got there.

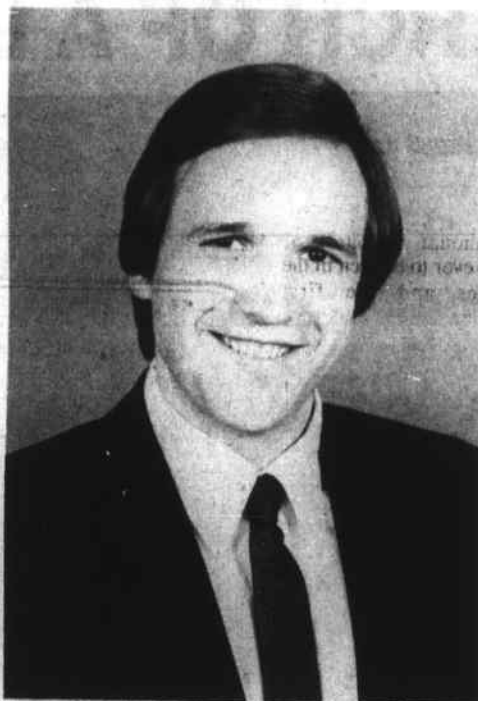

One of the interesting things about working for the ATF, she said, was the special collection of guns it had. It is the biggest "gun library" in the world.

The ATF is not allowed to sell any of the illegal guns which it has seized. Once a gun is "illegal" it is always illegal.

And that is how the ATF gun library was collected.

State Rep. Geoff Beckwith

He cares about Wilmington

State Rep. Geoff Beckwith is on our side. As a legislator for the past four years, he has an outstanding record of independence and effectiveness, speaking up for our interests and needs. Here are just a few of his accomplishments and positions:

* Geoff played a key roll in blocking the sludge treatment plant proposed for North Wilmington.

*Geoff has taken a lead role in efforts to protect and preserve drinking water, and is determined to help Wilmington residents deal with water quality issues.

*Geoff has cut our taxes by voting to repeal the 7 1/2 percent surtax, slash the estate tax, and cut $100 million in 1987 in increasing personal exemptions, and has co-sponsored further tax relief for senior citizens.

*Thanks to Geoff's advocacy, Wilmington's local aid is higher than ever before. In fact, Geoff successfully voted to increase local aid to this district by over $750,000 this year, and by $5.8 million in the four years that Geoff has been our State Representative.

*Geoff opposed and voted to end furloughs for first degree murderers.

*Geoff also voted against the legislative pay raise.

*Rep. Geoff Beckwith is an independent and effective legislator. He has 10 years of experience at the state and local level, and he has a strong and proven record working for Wilmington. Geoff is the only candidate with a record of experience and accomplishment for us.

Center for arts offers voice lessons

The Wilmington Center for the Arts will offer individual voice lessons given by the noted Diane Spiotto - McGary, Mezzo-Soprano of the Boston, New York City and New Jersey areas. Students must be of eighth grade age or older. The hours available will be Thursdays from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and/or Fridays from 2:30 to 7:30 p.m.

It is anticipated that lessons might commence on Thursday, November 3, 1988. They will be 45 minutes in length for an individual lesson at a cost of $16.

A course in art history will be taught at the Arts center by the talented Wilmington artist, Rita Stynes - Strow. She has won many awards for her work. She holds degrees from the University of Ireland, London University, and the Dublin College of Art.

Classes will be held at the Center on Friday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 and cover a six week period. They will begin on November 11, 1988 and the cost will be $6.00 per lesson or $36.00 for the course.

For further information and registration for each of these courses, please call Elizabeth White at 658-2042.

Miceli office hours

Representative James R. Miceli, who represents both Tewksbury and Wilmington on Beacon Hill, will hold his monthly office hours for constituents on the following dates:

Tewksbury: Tuesday, November 15 from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the town hall.

Wilmington: Wednesday, November 16 from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and 7:30 to 9 p.m. at 4A Colonial Mall.

League to sponsor forum on affordable housing

"Approaches to Affordable Housing" will be the subject of a public forum sponsored by the Wilmington League of Women Voters. The forum, which is the second in a series of public forums on issues of local interest, will be held at the Senior Citizen's Center, 15 School St., Thursday, November 10 at 7:30 p.m.

Since the town's Affordable Housing Task Force is proposing significant changes in the zoning bylaw, to be voted on at a special town meeting November 14, the public is encouraged to attend this meeting to hear panelists address various perspectives on affordable housing.

A representative from the Executive Office of Communities and Development will review various options which communities may utilize in order to meet the state's affordable housing requirements. Representative Grace from Burlington, who chairs a special legislative committee on housing, will discuss the work of that group. Selectman Jim Stewart, chairman of the Affordable Housing Task Force, will discuss his committee's recommendations for Wilmington; and a representative of the Wilmington Housing Authority has been invited to present that committee's perspective on affordable housing. The League encourages voters to take advantage of this opportunity to become better informed about the issues before town meeting.

Great American Smokeout November 17

The Community Health Education Department of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington invites you to participate in its annual Great American Smokeout event on Thursday, November 17 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Just drop by the main lobby and receive helpful quitting tips, survival kits and other useful information. Literature, videos, and displays will be available along with many other fun surprises. A health educator will also be available for individual and group counseling.

So why not stop by and let's pull together to help make this a smoke free day. It's up to you. With a strong commitment, and with the support of your family and friends, you can quit smoking!

Some call it impossible, we call it an opportunity to stop smoking on November 17. Good luck, and enjoy a happy smoke free environment.

For more information, please call the Community Health Education Department at 657-3910, ext. 567.

Council for Arts to sponsor bus trip to Fog Museum

The Wilmington Council for the Arts will sponsor a bus trip to the Fog Museum of Harvard College Saturday, November 12, 1988. An exhibition entitled "A Prosperous Past: The Sumptuous Still Life in the Netherlands 1600-1700" will be shown at the Fogg through November 27, 1988. It is the first major international exhibition of Dutch still life ever to be seen in the United States and the first exhibition of the "sumptuous type of still life assembled anywhere in the world."

A charge of $10.00 will cover the bus trip and the museum admission fee. Checks should be made payable to the Wilmington Council for the Arts, Town Hall, Wilmington, MA 01887. The deadline is Friday, November 4, 1988.

The bus will leave at 12:30 sharp from the Arts Center on Middlesex Avenue (across from the Congregational Church).

Financial planning seminar at Tewksbury Library

The Tewksbury Public Library will sponsor a financial planning seminar on Thursday evening, November 3, from 7 to 9. The program will be held in the library's conference room. The public is invited and admission is free. Pre-registration is recommended, but not required.

The seminar, entitled, "The Basics of Financial Planning," will be conducted by Roger Cogan, of Prudential-Bache Securities, in Burlington, Mass. Mr. Cogan will cover topics such as portfolio planning, asset allocation, and investment selection. He will also discuss how to select a financial adviser as well as other pertinent topics. A question and answer session will follow the formal presentation.

"Peer Support Group" at AIM Center

Attention to all disabled people living in the Wilmington area. The Wilmington Committee of Citizens with Disabilities invites you to come to the monthly "Peer Support Group" meeting Saturday November 5 from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the Aim Center - Fourth of July Headquarters. This is an opportunity to discuss your thoughts, feelings, rights, and responsibilities with other people who have similar concerns.

The group will be facilitated by Marshall Weimann, a disabled Wilmington resident. Guest speakers will be invited to attend occasionally and suggestions are welcome. Additional information may be obtained by calling Marshall Weimann at 657-4790 after 7 p.m.

Burning pain in the ball of your foot may not be as serious as you think.

The ball of your foot burns and cramps. Nothing seems to eliminate the pain. But you don't have the time or energy to have a doctor look at it, let alone put you out of commission for corrective surgery.

Persons of all ages commonly experience neuromas (entrapped or pinched nerves). Neuromas can be treated simply and decisively with steroid injections to reduce the swelling. If surgery is needed, it can be accomplished on an outpatient basis.

Laser surgery is now an effective technique for neuroma excision.

When your feet hurt, come to professionals who specialize in total foot care.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending November 1, Wilmington police officers responded to 13 accidents, 34 alarms, five disturbances, one fire, made nine arrests and one protective custody detention.

Medical assistance was given, a vehicle was reported stolen and one stolen vehicle was recovered. Alert neighbors reported six incidents of suspicious activity, three assault and batteries were logged, four break and entries were investigated and one robbery was reported.

Fifteen incidents of vandalism are still under investigation, two trespassing complaints were taken along with three complaints involving traffic, one threat, and a trailbike complaint. Three service calls were made and a fireworks complaint was checked out.

Arrests

Tuesday at 12:30 p.m., Officer Jim Cuoco arrested a Reading man after investigating an accident on Ballardvale Street in which one operator left the scene. William Buonosora, 149 Summer Street, Woburn Court Thursday morning.

Sunday evening Officer Tom Miller arrested Randy Smith of Willow Street, Tewksbury after stopping him on Church Street. Smith was charged with operating without a license and excessive noise.

Officers Peterson and Chalifour while on traffic enforcement Monday morning stopped a Methuen resident and arrested him on several charges. Wayne Friedrich, 19 of 54 Deborah Ave., Methuen was charged with operating after revocation of his drivers license. He was also charged with possession of two dangerous weapons, a blackjack and a set of martial arts nunchucks. He was taken directly to Woburn Reading was charged with operating under the influence and leaving the scene of an accident without identifying himself. He was taken directly to Woburn Court for arraignment.

Just before midnight Tuesday Sgt. Jim Rooney arrested William Collins, 16 Wightman Avenue, Tewksbury charging him with operating under the influence.

At 2 a.m. Thursday Officer Frank Hancock traveled to Wareham Police Department to arrest David DiFrancesco, 35B Park St., Billerica on a warrant issued by Woburn District Court. He was held overnight to appear in proved by the Finance Committee because petitioners failed to show, article seven came in for its share of discussion and clarification. That article asks voters to approve the transfer of certified free cash to the FY'88 school budget to make up a shortfall.

Those present at the hearing were assured there was enough money in free cash and there would be no problem with combining the town and school accounting systems in the future. Stapczynski reminded all that "it would be unfortunate, to say the least, if this article isn't passed." Fincom members are expected to vote on the use of free cash to resolve the deficit at their meeting next week.

Though it generated little discussion, article 13, if passed, could have far-reaching impact on Wilmington government. That article seeks a Town Charter change to elect selectmen by precinct.

In presenting his article, petitioner Dennis Volpe said he hoped it would improve resident representation and correct "imbalances" in the current system.

The article calls for a board made up of seven selectmen, six elected from the precincts in which they reside and the seventh elected at-large.

When asked for his opinion, Stewart maintained that the article would diminish representation since residents would only have a chance to vote for two selectmen: their own and the selectmen at-large.

Other articles under review concerned a bylaw change to allow a Speedee Oil Change business only in a general business zone, the construction of sewers on Main Street, a transfer of funds for a hazardous materials study and a planning director, and approval of a state grant for Shawsheen Tech.

For more than 30 years, Larry Cushing served as athletic director for the Wilmington Public Schools and recreation director for the town. On Saturday afternoon, the new gymnasium was dedicated in his honor. Members of the Cushing family on hand for the dedication included Larry Cushing, Jr., Joan Buckley, Jim Cushing, Gert "Pudge" Cushing, Gerry Cushing, Pat Robarge, and Jack Cushing.

Two state Rep. fights on Tuesday's ballot

by Kevin J. Sowryda

Wilmington voters will face two state representative fights at the ballot box on Tuesday. In precinct six, incumbent Democrat Geoff Beckwith is being challenged by Republican Roy Williamson. And in precinct three, Republican Bob Avakian hopes to defeat incumbent democrat Augie Grace. This is the first time Wilmington voters will be casting votes in the newly drawn legislative districts.

Two legislators are unopposed on Tuesday, Rep. Jim Miceli and Senator Bob Buell.

As for the contested races, what follows is a brief synopsis of the candidates and their campaign themes.

Avakian vs. Grace: On broader issues, both candidates maintain positions held by their respective parties. Avakian favors the death penalty, while Grace is opposed. On the abortion issue, Grace calls himself 'pro-choice' while Avakian is 'pro-life'. And on gun control, Avakian says he is against it, while Grace says Americans have the right to bear arms, but that there should be "reasonable restrictions on who should own a gun."

As to how they would address the pending state fiscal crisis, Avakian has released a $300 million budget-cutting plan, wants to eliminate duplication of services between the MDC and the MWRA, and would cut the "10,000 state patronage jobs" added to the payroll over the last few years.

Rep. Grace maintains that the 10,000 new state employees includes new police, mental health care workers, and corrections officers. He says the Legislature cut $450 million from the governor's original budget, and if revenues continue to lag, there should be cuts in 03 contracts and personnel.

As for the big campaign issue, Avakian says it has been Grace's vote in the House against a senior citizens' tax deduction and a mortgage interest tax deduction. Rep. Grace identifies the big issue as Chapter 774 and how communities can be given more control in the affordable housing programs.

Williamson vs. Beckwith: On broader issues, both of these candidates have a similar philosophy on gun control. Beckwith favors the present system of gun permits to obtain a gun, with Williamson stating that "people have the right to own guns and protect their property."

But on the death penalty, Williamson is in favor, and Beckwith opposed. And on the issue of abortion, Williamson identifies himself as 'pro-life' while Beckwith says he is 'pro-choice'.

As to the present budget crunch on Beacon Hill, Williamson has campaigned for a five percent reduction in the state work force and a major reevaluation of the 03 contracts. He favors a consolidation of the MDC and a special legislative committee to investigate spending practices at the MWRA.

Rep. Beckwith says the fiscal crisis must be dealt with by controlling spending and reducing 5,000 state employees. He favors a "clamp-down on the 03 contracts" and wants to improve the budget oversight capabilities of the administration.

As for the big campaign issue in the race between Rep. Beckwith and Roy Williamson, the challenger says it has been taxes and the state spending crisis, "and why Beckwith voted against the $91 million in local aid."

Rep. Beckwith maintains that "advocacy for our district" is the big issue, and that "the major difference is that 'I have 10 years of experience in government and my opponent has none.'"

Hop growing in Massachusetts

©Copyright 1988 by
Capt. Larz Neilson

The Boston Sunday Herald, on October 16 published, in its Magazine a story promoting New England apples, as an ingredient for the making of fine wines. As a part of the introduction the author declared that hops do not grow in New England, and never have.

In Wilmington that kind of statement is enough to cause the town fathers to call out the Wilmington Company of Minutemen. Not only is the story baseless, but it in fact attempts to destroy New England (and Wilmington) history.

It is quite possible that many New England communities had settlers who grew hops, as an ingredient for the making of beer. Possibly the Pilgrims would be in such an historical classification and/or the Puritans who founded Charlestown and Boston.

One can find, in the pages of the Pilgrim Journal a record from their voyage on the Mayflower:

"For we could not now take time for further search or consideration, our victuals being much spent, especially our beer."

After such thoughts can one say that the Pilgrims did not plant hops, at the first opportunity?

This much is certain. The early Colonials did bring hops with them, from Britain.

Hops, which grow as vines, have distinct sexual differences. There are female plants and male plants.

It was the leaves of the female plants which produced the best beer. The male leaves, when brewed, left a distinctly bitter taste.

Male plants of course were necessary, but Wilmington farmers were interested in them only as a means of propagating the species.

By 1805 hops were being commercially grown in Wilmington. An excellent flavored beer was being derived from the hop plants which grew in the uplands of the town, uplands, in this case being land that was not a part of the swamps and wetlands of Wilmington.

The farming of hops became a town industry. The opening of the Middlesex Canal, which ran from Charlestown to Lowell was a stimulus. The hops were loaded on the sea going vessels in Boston, and shipped to Albany, New York, and, quite probably, other ports.

Between 1806 and 1837, 76,806 bags of hops were shipped through the Port of Boston. All, it seems, had its origin in Wilmington and nearby communities.

Careful records were kept. The total value of the hops which were sent was $2,169,430. That money, of course, is expressed in dollars of that time, when a person who could earn a dollar a day was well paid.

Keeping the records of the hops which were shipped was easy. All that had to be done was to consult the manifests of the Middlesex Canal barges, to find the total number of bags shipped. Some of the automobiles of recent times had less cubic volume than had the hop bags of that day.

There was an exception, during the War of 1812. Asa Sheldon provided an answer. Asa was a well known person in Wilmington, who wrote his autobiography and published it, under the name of "Wilmington Farmer." Copies are on file in the Wilmington Public Library. It has recently been reprinted under the name Yankee Drover.

During that war cruisers of the Royal Navy of Great Britain were off the American coast, harrying commerce. It was impossible to ship hops by water, from Boston.

Asa tells the story in his autobiography. He transported hops to Albany by oxcart. It is possible that other Wilmington men did the same thing, but there is no record.

Asa related of the fear of highwaymen, on his return to Wilmington. He would hide the money in the ear of an ox. Fortunately it seems he never met any bandits.

Vast acreage was devoted, in Wilmington and adjoining communities, to the growing of hops. Stone walls, today, tell the tale. New homes are now being constructed in the areas, in which until recently were pine or other forests. The new home owners can find, on their properties, old stone walls.

Those stone walls are in existence because the Wilmington farmers cleared every place possible to grow hops. Hops were grown too in Tewksbury, Andover, and Burlington, and possibly other communities.

William Blanchard Jr., of Wilmington, was the state inspector of hops. He received a salary of $2,000 a year, a salary which was equal to that paid to the Governor of Massachusetts.

His was an important job. It was his duty to insure that all hops being shipped by the canal to Boston were up to standards set by the state.

William Blanchard Jr. was better known as Squire Blanchard. He was the son of the man who had been sergeant of the Wilmington Minutemen on Concord Day, and who was the lieutenant of the company of infantry commanded by Capt. John Harnden on the day of Bunker Hill. Blanchard became, eventually, colonel of the Fourth Middlesex Regiment.

Squire William Blanchard probably lived in his father's home, which was at the southeast corner of Federal Street and Middlesex Avenue. The colonel lived until 1833, and died at the age of 82. He, or his son had established a store

hop kiln

The remains of the hop kiln on the Goldsmith farm in Andover. The stone wall is about 30 inches thick, solidly built. Behind it is a stone lined hole, about eight feet long and half as wide.

Evidently there was over this a wooden structure, roofed, but with means of ventilation. The pine branches on top have been there many years, being, presumably, a safety measure.

The stone in the "center" of the wall is a form of sandstone. All others are granolithic.

across the street, on the westerly side of Middlesex Avenue, a store which became the "political" center of Wilmington. Indeed, the importance of the corner may be guessed from the fact that Federal Street was so named. Colonel Blanchard was, ipso facto, the Federal Government in Wilmington.

However, Squire Blanchard may well have lived, at least at a later date, in what is now the Brooks house in North Wilmington. The "Widow" Blanchard was living there in the days after the Civil War.

Many Wilmington families were in the hops industry.

Down off Chestnut Street, behind the William Butters II House, where Paul Emery lives today (161 Chestnut) was a hop kiln, where the hops were dried before being sent to Boston. Nearby are many stone walls, walls which show that hops were grown in the area.

The Benjamin Buck House, off Wildwood Street (216 Wildwood, home of the Hanson family) has the only existing "hop chute." Hops, grown on Buck's Hill were carried up into the attic of that home and there dried. There they were put in bags, and dropped down the chute.

The Benjamin Buck House is not only the oldest house in Wilmington (c. 1661) but is the only "Hop House" in the United States.

As a guess it was Ephriam Buck who grew hops for the family beer. Ephriam was the person who shot the last bear to be killed in Wilmington, back in August 1760. His son Nathan was the man who owned the farm after the Revolution, and there were six children born to Nathan and Elizabeth (Betty) Thompson Buck. Benjamin and Jonathan, it seems, were the men in the "hop story".

Benjamin is the one credited with the making of money for the Buck family. He had a secret hiding place, near the back door, one which was only discovered during the 1960s. A chestnut beam had an addition to it which could not be seen at a glance and there Benjamin secreted his cash.

Although he was not so called, Benjamin became the town banker, the man who could loan $1,000 to the town when it was needed. It happened on several occasions, according to the records of the Town of Wilmington.

Benjamin's older brother (by two years) was Jonathan, and the two men it seems were also business partners. It is quite probable that they were growing hops in 1817, the year when Wilmington hops commanded the best price. The price that year was 34 cents a pound. Two years later it had dropped to five cents a pound.

Hop cultivation stopped in 1837. That, it seems, was the second year of the "hop blight". Hop cultivation never resumed, but some hops were still to be seen, growing wild, as late as the 1950s. Wild hops existed at the corner of Middlesex Avenue

Dawn Sica is bride of Robert Mailey

Marie Angela Sica, of Mashpee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sica of Brockton became the bride of Robert Mailey, son of Jane Mailey of Wenham and Richard Mailey of Newburyport on August 23.

The early evening ceremony was performed by Father James Morgan, SJ, before the altar of St. Ignatius Church at Boston College where the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Christina Hemingway, of Brighton, sister of the bride served as matron of honor and the bridesmaids included Diane Bastable of Seabrook, Shay Bernardi of Fort Meyers, Fla; Mary Jane Baughn, sister of the groom of Rockport, Laurel Howes of Brockton and Sandra Upton of Roslindale.

Thomas Mailey of Magnolia served his brother as best man while ushering duties were in charge of Toby Dewey of Sherborn, Robert Perkins of Camden, Maine, Steven Winer of Marlborough, Peter Hemingway of Brighton, brother-in-law of the bride; and Daniel Shafer of North Reading.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at Park Plaza Hotel in Boston.

Following a wedding trip to San Francisco and Hawaii, the couple now lives on Chestnut Street in Wilmington.

Cheryl Ann Coy to wed Matthew Phillips

The Rev. and Mrs. Lawrence Coy of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla have announced the engagement of their daughter Cheryl Ann to Matthew S. Phillips, son of Mrs. Connie Phillips and the late Wallace Phillips of Wilmington.

Miss Coy is a graduate of Hollywood Christian School and is at present a senior at Liberty University, where she is majoring in education.

Her fiancé is a graduate of Wilmington High school and received a degree in Christian Philosophy and Biblical Studies from Liberty University.

A May wedding is planned.

Dawn Lockhart, Gregg Roberts to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Lockhart of Pringle Street, Tewksbury have announced the engagement of their daughter, Dawn Marie, to Gregg T. Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Roberts of Lee Street, Wilmington.

Dawn is a 1984 graduate of Shawshen Tech and is currently employed as a sales support coordinator at Xylogics, Inc. in Burlington.

Her fiancé, also a 1984 graduate of Shawshen Tech, is presently employed as an auto body technician at Bob's Auto Body Shop in Wilmington.

A Bond house

The Congregational Church parsonage, in Wilmington, photographed about 1905 by the late Ed Nelson Eames. Beside it on Wildwood Street were the streetcar tracks to Perry's Corner, now called Lucci's.

Hop growing

and High Street (where the new Route 62 is today), and a man named Cronis, who lived in the Madam Eames house used to pick hops every year, for his own private use.

Francis Downs, a few days ago found some female hops growing at the edge of the Ayotte Street in Wilmington. Seed pods are distinctly visible.

Jonathan Buck constructed a "Federal" home, next door to the Benjamin Buck home, about 1820. It was later known as the Darius Buck home, and is now the home of Atty. and Mrs. John Callan.

The Harnden farms, in North Wilmington (there were several) were cultivated for hops. On the north side of what is now High Street lived Henry Carter, at the site of what is now the Allen-Espinola home, 40 High St. Henry cultivated hops extensively. His son William Henry constructed the imposing home at 14 High St., now the Perdicaró home.

William Henry, who was called "Bill Hen One" because there were two men of the same name in Wilmington, became the treasurer of the Boston & Maine Railroad. It can be argued that he used hop money to construct his home. It can also be argued that his money was that earned as the corporation treasurer for the B&M.

Northerly of High Street, for several miles, were and still are many stone walls, built during the "hop age" of Wilmington. One can find them between Ballardvale Street and Andover Street.

Still further north, in Andover, was the Goldsmith Farm, on the east side of Foster's Pond. It was the site of intensive cultivation of hops, in the early days of the 19th century.

The farm today is a woodland, in which one can find the cellar hole of what used to be the farmhouse, probably the home of Jeremiah Goldsmith. Nearby is the remains of the hop kiln, possibly the only hop kiln still existing in Massachusetts.

Bessie Goldsmith, the last of the family to live in Andover told the writer that the family had planted their hops on top of the eskers (glacial river hills) which are to be found on the old farm site. There was no planting of hops in the valleys between the hills.

It is quite probable that the Goldsmith family shipped hops to Boston by the Middlesex Canal, in Wilmington. In such an instance, the Goldsmith hops would probably be recorded as coming from Wilmington.

Hops paid for church parsonage

The money used by Benjamin Buck in 1876, when the Congregational Church parsonage was conveyed to him in repayment of a loan, was money that the Buck family had earned by the sale of hops, half a century earlier.

The parsonage is a building which has stood in the corner of Middlesex Avenue and Wildwood Street for about 175 years. It was built for Captain Joseph Bond, who served in the Revolutionary Army, and then later moved to Wilmington. Captain Bond established a bakery (crackers) in Wilmington which prospered. His first home in Wilmington was about where the Baptist Church stands today.

A descendant, Thomas D. Bond gave the building to the Congregational Church in 1854, to be used as a parsonage.

About 1876 the church steeple was destroyed by a hurricane or tornado. Frances Hiller, the lady known as Mrs. Dr. Hiller promised to pay for the rebuilding, according to an ancient tale, but never did.

Then Benjamin Buck purchased the parsonage. Reputedly he paid $5,000, money that had been his property since the days of selling hops, half a century earlier.

The following August Benjamin Buck gave the parsonage back to the church. He stipulated that the building shall be kept in good repair, and if damaged by fire should be immediately repaired. The parsonage should always be kept and maintained for the use of the pastor and his family. However, if there was a period in which there was no pastor the parsonage could be rented, however, always paying attention to the conditions reserved by the deed.

In the event the church (called the Religious Society) failed to comply with all the restrictions reserved in the deed, the parsonage was to revert "to myself and my heirs as fully as if this deed had not been executed."

Civic pride stressed in new Sooner Lube operation

Sooner Lube is located on 734 Main Street in Tewksbury right across the street from Friendly's restaurant.

by Christine Tighe
What seems to be just another quick-lube operation on the surface, is really a company that encompasses the spirit of the people involved.

Jim Gill, one of the four owners of the new Sooner Lube on Main Street, Tewksbury said, "We don't want to come across as just another cinder block with guys doing quick oil changes on cars."

Gill stressed that there is a civic pride among the owners and the employees there.

Lou Carciofi and his wife Beth are the owners of the property.

"Lou really went out of his way from a money standpoint with the landscape of the shrubs and flowers and we feel that it aesthetically enhances Route 38 which is important to a lot of the Tewksbury residents," said Gill.

"Lou also thought that this area was in need of a fast lube service like this one," he added.

Gill also stressed that he is pleased to have such conscientious workers and also that he didn't have to advertise for employees.

"I went around to different establishments to see how kids conducted themselves working and then I asked if they would like to train and come work for me. That's how I got my first six employees and the number just grew bigger by word of mouth," said Gill.

He believes that good help is a valuable asset to his company.

He has a lot of kids that go to Tewksbury High School and a couple of co-op students from Shawsheen Tech working at Sooner Lube.

Gill said that this job can afford the flexibility for students and their school work which he feels should be their number one priority.

"It is pretty laid back here. Nobody has to be baby-sat and I feel that the kids are responding in kind," said Gill.

New sporting goods store offers wide selection

McCormack Sports, a full line athletic equipment house, opened its doors Saturday, October 29, at 2288 Main St., at the Tewksbury Common Mall in South Tewksbury.

Owned and managed by George McCormack of Tewksbury, this new store will offer local residents a wide selection of equipment and accessories for hockey, football, basketball, baseball - softball, soccer, tennis - racquetball and fitness.

McCormack says he carries "some of the biggest names in the industry - Wilson, Spaulding, Bauer, Cooper, Rawlings, Avia and many more. We're offering equipment for the entire family, including adults, teens and toddlers. Right now, we're all geared up for a big hockey season with a full assortment of sticks, skates, pads, and bags."

In addition, the store will offer a full line of footwear and apparel including the latest in pro-style jackets, hats, shirts and sweats. "We're an authorized dealer for "Starter" jackets and accessories, which are the "officially approved" products of the NHL, NBA, NFL and Major League Baseball," McCormack explains.

With over 2,300 square feet of floor space, McCormack Sports also carries a wide assortment of cleats, sneakers, aerobic and running shoes, sports trivia games and billiard supplies.

McCormack, 30, of Heath Street, has lived in Tewksbury for three years. Raised in Somerville, he was a three-sport star at Somerville High School and has over eight years' experience in the sporting goods business.

Experienced Redmen ready for tourney

The Tewksbury High School boys' varsity soccer team begins its second season today (Nov. 2) as they participate in the annual Division II Eastern Massachusetts North Divisional Tournament.

Coach Steve Levine's Redmen will play Austin Prep at the Cougars' home field starting at 2:30 p.m. This will be Tewksbury's fifth straight tournament and their eighth in their last nine years.

This past week Tewksbury finished its MVC Small School Conference season with a win over Haverhill, tying them with Dracut for first place. This gave the Redmen their fifth straight title and sixth in their last seven years.

Jim Pollard finished as the MVC's leading scorer and Chris Stys recorded some of the best statistics in the league as goalkeeper. Co-captain Keith Krugh, senior Jim Pollard, and senior Chris Stys were all selected for the Large vs Small School All-Star game, with Pollard and Krugh being picked as members of the elite All-Conference team.

Tewksbury also had two non-conference games this past week, defeating a late East Boston squad, 5-1, and losing an intense 2-1 decision to the dual county league champs, Concord-Carlisle.

who had scored five goals in his previous two games, added the first two goals in Tewksbury's 5-1 victory over East Boston.

Walsh's first goal came midway through the first half, giving the Redmen a 1-0 halftime lead. Jim Pollard received the assist on the goal. Walsh made the score 2-0 a minute and a half into the second half off a cross from junior wing Gary Kidder. Two minutes later

Pollard set up Kidder for a 3-0 lead.

After East Boston made the score 3-1, Pat Frend got his first varsity goal from the fullback position, as he banged in a 35 yard, cross off a drop pass from senior forward Robbie Williams. Junior Pat Romano closed out the scoring with an unassisted goal late in the game.

Tewksbury 4 Haverhill 0
Tewksbury defeated Haverhill, giving them the MVC Small School championship, 4-0. The score doesn't indicate the Redmen domination in this game, as Haverhill had one shot on net.

Co-captain Derek Heartquist scored the team's third goal and first of the second half off another assist by Pollard, while Pollard

Wildcats trick, then treat Lancers, 7-6

On October 30, the day before Halloween, most people are thinking about trick or treat. The Wilmington Pop Warner C' team was no exception. They tricked the Lawrence Lancers all day, and when it was over the treat they received was a 7-6 victory.

The Wildcats started right from the opening whistle, as the Cats put together a 70 yard, eight play scoring drive. The drive was led by the running of Mike Gilbert. Instrumental in the drive was the offensive line of Phillip Ritucci, Jay Iannacchino, Joe Alonardo and Dave Magglio.

The scoring drive was capped off by a Mike Gilbert touchdown and a Danny Lutz run for the PAT.

The Wildcats let up a bit in the third quarter when the Lancers recovered a fumble and moved in for the score. Tough Wilmington defense held strong on the PAT. It was led by Stephen O'Neill, Bill Holloway and Dick Maynard.

The Wildcats had the ball in the final quarter, but lost it to a turnover. The Lancers then mounted a 60 yard drive. The only problem was they were 70 yards away for paydirt.

The Wilmington defense bent, but never broke. Joe Alonardo and Ritchie Gillis both played well. The key play was a fourth and goal with six ticks left on the clock. The Lancers attempted a last ditch pass, but Rob Bentley rushed the pass and Phillip Ritucci knocked down the ball. The Wildcats were 7-6 winners with a total team effort.

A' team falls, 19-12

The A' team Wildcat squad travelled to Lawrence where they lost a very tough game, 19-12.

On offense, quarterback John O'Reilly had an excellent day passing the ball. On the receiving end of those passes were end Joe Catanzano and Kevin McArthur, who made a sensational one hand catch. Running back Randy Johnson threw a couple of option passes for good yardage. Tom Aprile continued his hard running, picking up a couple of long gainers.

Up front blocking, Jason Morin had a good game. John O'Reilly and Tom Aprile accounted for the two Wilmington touchdowns.

On defense, Randy Johnson caused a fumble with a ferocious hit on a Lawrence ballcarrier. Defensive backs Chris Sullivan and Tom Aprile had good games, as did Mike Doucette at defensive end.

This week the A' team hosts Dracut Thursday night, November 3 at the Glen Road field. Kickoff will be at 7:30. Come out and cheer the A' team in its' last game of the season.

B' team topped, 25-6

The B' team Wildcats suffered a tough loss to the Lawrence B' team, 25-6 in Pop Warner action Sunday.

Two long runs of 60 yards and 52 yards along with a 55 yard touchdown pass put the B's in a tough early 19-0 deficit that was too much to overcome. Despite being down early, the B' team never let up and pretty much controlled the second half of play to give Lawrence all it could handle and make a game of it.

Aside from the three long plays Lawrence had very little offense, as the defense led by linebackers Keith Pearlstein, Dan Ballou and Mike Alonardo along with defensive linemen David Carideo, Bill Cofilli, Ryan Stuart and Richie Muse kept Lawrence pretty much in check.

Missing two starting linemen caused a few problems for the young Wildcat offense, as they could never really get their running game untracked. However, fine offensive efforts were turned in by Brian Tildsley, Rick Blizzard, Joe Langone, Sean Ballou and Jeff Morin.

Wilmington's lone touchdown was scored by Keith Pearlstein on a seven yard run behind the blocking of center Joe Lyman, guard Vinnie Strow and tackle Josh Levesque following a nice 63 yard drive highlighted by a 37 yard run by Mike Alonardo. Running well on the drive also was fullback Paul Bruno behind the blocking of offensive linemen Jason Grady, Jack Doucette and Andy Bower.

The Wilmington B' team will play its' final game of the season Friday, November 4 at 7:30 p.m. under the lights at the town hall field. Come see them in action.

D' team deadlocked

Wilmington Pop Warner D' team played a stubborn Lawrence team to an 18-18 tie.

The D' team held Lawrence when they attempted the extra point with just 28 seconds left to keep it tied.

Billy Harrison had an outstanding game, scoring three touchdowns on runs of 70, 29 and 28 yards. Wayne Francis played well at quarterback and had some excellent runs as well.

On defense, good plays were made by John Plunkett, Jamie Campbell, Adam Mazza, Billy Harrison and Steve Ritucci.

theft

Wildcat senior linebacker John Rago takes off down the sideline with a 55 yard interception return for his team's lone touchdown against Haverhill Saturday afternoon. Wilmington went down to defeat for the seventh time after taking a 7-0 lead into halftime. See story on page 22.

Happy Olympian

Olympian Megan Donnelly, of Wilmington, attended a party thrown for U.S. Olympic Team by Coca-Cola USA Sunday on the eve of historic visit to the White House. More than 400 athletes from the American team which competed in Seoul came to Washington for a meeting October 24 with President Ronald Reagan. Coca-Cola USA helped sponsor the D.C. trip for the athletes, in cooperation with the U.S. Olympic Committee.

WHS soccer girls ready

The Wilmington High School soccer girls are on a real roll as they head for an Eastern Mass. Division II appearance in just their second season of varsity competition.

The Wildcats posted must wins over Dracut (4-0), North Reading (2-1) and Lowell (2-0) to qualify for their tournament game this afternoon (Nov. 2) against Bishop Fenwick at the Shawheen School. Game time is 2:30 p.m. The team finished with a fine overall record of 11-4-2 in the regular season, with two of those losses at the hands of unbeaten (12-0-0) Andover.

Junior right wing Erin McKenna has been a real spark for Wilmington, notching 13 goals and five assists for the season.

McKenna and Andrea Ducey scored the goals in the win over Lowell, with assists to Debbie Dellascio and Kara Scalesse. Denise Cosgrove and Stacy Quellete split the goalkeeping chores in this win.

closed out his MVC league leading scoring stats off a pass from Heartquist. The Redmen finished with a 10-1-3 MVC record.

Richie Proulx, a sophomore wingback, played several positions in this game and was the best player on the field next to Pollard and Heartquist. Chris Stys recorded his ninth shutout of the season, lowering his goals against average to 0.79.

Concord-Carlisle 2 Tewksbury 1

The Concord-Carlisle Patriots had won the Dual County League championship. They were playing the MVC Small School champions, Tewksbury. There could be a chance somewhere down the line that both these teams will meet each other in the Division II State Tournament.

The Patriots would win 2-1, but the intensity of the game was that of a tournament game. Concord scored the only goal of the first half off a cross from right to left. Tewksbury would tie the game midway through the second half as junior Chris Sands took a pass from co-captain Keith Krugh and beat the Patriot keeper.

The winning goal was scored during the last six minutes when an unnoticed hand directed ball led to a goal seconds later off some excellent one-touch passing in the penalty area by the Patriot forwards.

Richie Proulx played an outstanding game at fullback, but still had to finish second fiddle to Tewksbury goalkeeper Chris Stys, who saved several sure shot goals by Concord. The Redmen finished the season with an overall record of 12-2-4.

MVC All-Star game

The All-Stars took to the field at Andover's Lovely Field in the fifth annual Large vs Small School All-Star game. Tewksbury was represented by Jim Pollard, Keith Krugh, and Chris Stys. All three played a key roll in the Small School's 1-0 victory in a game that featured excellent back and forth action. Jim Pollard scored the game's only goal off a nice pass from Dracut's Chris Chausse.

Krugh, who played extremely well, alternated between sweeperback and stopperback along with Dracut's Mike Ferchak. Stys played a good 40 minutes in net as he split duties with Wilmington's Steven Holbrook. Wilmington was also represented with outstanding hustling and skillful efforts by All-Conference player Andy Parr at midfield, and fullback Brian Gillespie and forward Doug Michaud.

The win narrowed the Large School's advantage in the series to 3-2 over their Small School counterparts. This was the second consecutive win for the Small School stars.

Punt, pass kick results

Last Saturday the Recreation Department and Pop Warner football conducted the annual punt, pass and kick contest. The results were as follows: Age eight: first, Dennis Torpey; 2nd, Peter Vachon; three, Jamie Campbell. Age nine: first, Lee Trimarchi; second, John Civetti; third, Tom Burke.

Wilmington Youth Soccer highlights

Only one more weekend left for Wilmington Youth Soccer, so get down to the Shawsheen field this Saturday for the last chance to see this exciting action. This weekend is the in-town players last chance to sign-up for travel teams spots (at trailer). Under 19 players or under 14 players call Andy Armata (658-2281).

Don't forget the important annual meeting Monday, Nov. 7 for all parents and coaches at the K of C hall. Vote (or run) for board of directors or volunteer for committees, and coaching staff.

The fall scholarship dance is Friday, Nov. 11 at Villanova Hall. Cost is $15 per couple; time 8 p.m. Buy tickets at the trailer at the Shawsheen field or at the door.

In-town results

Boys-girls under seven
Gummy Bears vs Bonkers
The excellent play of Kristen Thomas, Melissa Hanrahan and Lynn Hurley helped the Gummy

Bears to a fine game. Scoring for the Bonkers was Michael Pierni. Also helping the Bonkers was Eric Bromley, Justin Plimpton, Jennifer Anderson and Jeffrey Coughlin as keeper.

M&M's vs Skittles

Having fine games for the M&M's were Ted DeInnocentis, Katie Chisholm, Jennifer McNabb and Erin Rowe. Playing well for the Skittles were Christine Ross and Mike Corcoran. Getting on the scoreboard for the Skittles were Tim Riley, Danny Torpey, Nick Traghese, and Kristen Kacamburas.

In a previous game with the Bonkers, coach Kent reports that he had some fine performances turned in by Paul Cassely, Jason Langone, Jessie Garbati and Karen Hardy. Also in a previous game against the Gummy Bears, coach Frank Riley reports that he had some terrific goaltending by Nick Maselli, and Michele Marchesi. Adam Birmingham also played a strong game, but even better was a goal produced by Tim Riley.

Boys' under eight

Nikes vs Reeboks
Scoring for the Nikes was Jimmy Flaherty, and helping the Nikes cause with fine play was Anthony Sirocca, Doug Burns and Brendan Mallon.

For the Reeboks, fine performances were turned in by Sean Cahill, Matt Jones, Jeremy Lee, Matthew Coyne and William Kanaxis.

Pumas vs Adidas

Putting points on the board for the Pumas and Adam DiPasquale. Doing the same for the Adidas was Derek Mazza and Ryan Covino. Playing well for Adidas was Joe Delaney and Jason Harris, also doing great jobs for the Pumas was Kevin Bourinet and Glen Brewer.

Girls' under 10

Peacocks vs Blue Jays
Although there were no goal scorers for the Peacocks, coach Maureen Travis reports she was ecstatic with the play of all the girls. "It was their best game of the year," she noted. "The parents should be very happy with this team." Scoring for the Blue Jays were Emily King and Charlene Tamlin, and playing some fine soccer for the Blue Jays were Melissa Shea and Michelle Splaine.

Canaries vs Cardinals

Netting the ball (scoring) for the Canaries was Sharon Hansen. Playing some fine soccer for the Canaries were Leah Staffier, Lisa Dellascio and Kelly Barden. Playing equally well for the Cardinals were Kelly Arsenaault, Jennifer DeSimone and Courtney Gilligan.

Boys' under 11

Blizzards vs Tornados

Scoring for the Blizzards was Eric Manley, and scoring for the Tornados was Jonathan Coughlin and Anthony Smaak. Coach Peter

Bromley and Tom Maya of the Blizzards report that "this was the best fought game of this year, because there was no few good players - it was a team win." Coach Bob Jones also reports that Jimmy Smith and Greg Anderson played very well but his "whole team played very well together."

Hurricanes vs Monsoons

Playing great games for the Hurricanes were Ben Martel, Chris Burns, Jason Giangregorio, Tim Martel, Kenny Paige and BJ Cote. Doing a super job for the Monsoons were Joey Whitfield, Alex Veligor, Dennis Ingram, and Michael Daisy. Also scoring for the Monsoons were Bill Tate (two goals), Chris Graves and Michael Garball.

Earthquakes vs Typhoons

Playing with only seven kids and no subs, the Earthquakes did a super job, with Keith McLaren scoring two goals and Peter Grasso scoring from a corner kick. Playing a terrific game were Chad Horn, Jeremy Osgood, Billy Nitchie, Charlie Rice and Craig McLaren.

Girls' under 14

Planets vs Suns

Scoring for the Planets was Julie McDonald, and doing the same for the Suns was Jill Branley. Playing super for the Planets were Danielle Moscia, Maria Voner, Stephanie Poloian and Jennifer Jordan.

Coach Paul Ouellette reports that "it was a super game by all players." Laurie Graham, Mandy Trout, Kristine Robinson, Christine Devlin, Michelle Saudi, Heidi Rice, Kristen Peach, Barbara Fowle, Tara Durham, Jennifer Syracuse and Shannon Hatch as goalie.

Stars vs Comets

Doing a terrific job for the Stars were Erin Walters in goal, Ann Marie Provone, Melanie Johnson,

Abe enroute to touchdown

Redmen junior running back Abe Mills sees daylight enroute to a 14 yard touchdown gallop against Lawrence Saturday. Tackle Hugh Fitzpatrick (71) threw the block that sprung Mills for the score.

TMHS football

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

The Tewksbury High School football youth movement began in earnest with this week's 28-0 whacking of the hapless Lawrence Lancers.

Sophomore receivers Sean Mackey (six receptions, 63 yards) and Tim Lightfoot (two, 97 yards), sophomore Sean Conley and junior running back Abe Mills all combined to spark the Redmen to their fourth victory of the season.

Tewksbury's slate is now at 4-2-1 with games remaining against Billerica, Andover and Wilmington. Seven wins for the 1989 season is a distinct possibility.

The catalyst for coach Bob Aylward's youth brigade has been senior quarterback Dave Boudreau. The TMHS signal caller completed 14 of 21 passes for enough yards to put him over 1,000 for the season. Saturday Dave found talented youngsters Mackey (18 yards) and Lightfoot (87 yard screen pass) for touchdown strikes that helped close out the Lancers.

The Redmen also have a grizzled receiving veteran to help take on the double coverage. Senior tight end Tom Bradley made five receptions Saturday that were good for 60 yards. Bradley has made 26 catches this season and is approaching the TMHS record of 38 with three games remaining to play. He topped off another super two-way performance with a 36 yard interception return for a touchdown.

Mills made the most of his opportunity in the TMHS backfield with a nice 14 yard jaunt around left end that gave the Redmen a 21-0 advantage late in the game.

Kicker Sean Wilson put the capper on all of this Redmen offense with four perfect PATs.

WHS football

Another setback for Wildcats

It was another tough football loss for Wilmington High School as the Haverhill Hillies rallied for 17 second half points to spoil the Homecoming Game at Alumni Field with a 17-7 victory Saturday.

The Wildcats took a 7-0 first quarter lead when senior linebacker John Rago intercepted a Haverhill pass and returned it 55 yards for the touchdown. Dick Hersom toed the extra point.

The Wilmington offense was again forced to deal with adversity, as junior Steve Killilea stepped in at quarterback after an injury to sophomore Dennis Walsh earlier in the week. Walsh had replaced Frank Cenca when the WHS junior quarterback was also sidelined by injury.

Killilea, a National Honor Society member, played well on short notice, completing four of 14 passes for 54 yards in helping the WHS offense to their best total output of the season. That offense was also sparked by the play of Derek LeBlanc who gained 101 yards on 12 carries.

Berger tennis standout

Lorrie Berger of Wilmington is a member of the Franklin Pierce College women's tennis team. Freshman Berger plays in the fifth position for the Lady Ravens. She is the daughter of Robert and Nancy Terrazzano.

Franklin Pierce College is a private, four year co-educational institution in southwestern New Hampshire. Located on a 1,000 acre campus, Franklin Pierce College offers degrees in business, liberal arts and sciences and other professional studies.

WHS draws bye

The WHS' field hockey girls completed an unbeaten regular season with a 4-0 victory over Tewksbury last week. Earlier in the week goalie Gina Martiniello backboned a 0-0 tie with Chelmsford at Alumni Field. The lone blemish on the Wilmington record were ties with Tyngsboro and Chelmsford. The Wildcats have drawn a first round bye in the opening round of the Eastern Mass. Division II Tournament this week.

Bright light for Wildcats

Wilmington running back Derek LeBlanc ran for over 100 yards Saturday thanks to some fine blocks thrown by Joe Spencer (40) and John Rago (53).

The Twin State Figure Skating Club of Billerica will be holding registration for the next skating session Wednesday, November 9 from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. Twin State is an ISIA figure skating club that offers a variety of programs for the beginning skater to the experienced competitive skater. ISIA programs are geared toward the recreational skater.

Among the programs being offered will be a new and exciting competitive badge program for skaters who have achieved a level of Alpha, but not more than Delta. This program is designed for the skater who is above the beginners' level but not yet highly experienced. This class will offer individualized, choreographed routines taught and set to music by Twin Skate teaching professionals.

Classes for this competitive badge program will be held Wednesdays from 4:40 to 5:40 and 5:40 to 6:40. The cost of this specialized individual instruction is $10 per week. Also being offered on Wednesdays from 5:40 to 6:40 will be a new adult learn to skate program. This program will include a half hour of instruction and a half hour of group practice. Cost is $6 per hour.

For the beginning skater, Twin State offers one hour learn to skate programs on Wednesdays from 4:40 to 5:40 and Thursdays from 4:20 to 5:20 and 5:20 to 6:20. All classes are taught by trained professionals. Cost is $6 per hour, payable in monthly installments.

Patch and freestyle ice are available for the more experienced competitive skater interested in private lessons or practice ice on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Tot to teen precision skating, adult drill and team compulsory skating are also available on Mondays.

All programs will be held at the Hallenborg Ice Pavillion at the Billerica Memorial High School. Registration will be held Wednesday, November 9 from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. upstairs at the ice rink. If you would like to preregister for any of these programs, or you would like more information about joining a program or becoming a club member, call Donna Leccese at 658-2740.

A good knife is essential

by Bill Conlon

Like countless other members of the plaid shirted clan, one vital part of my morning dress-up ritual is made of cold steel.

Deep in my back pocket there is always a serviceable knife, which is just as important as my comb, my wallet, or my car keys. I wouldn't leave home without one.

A good knife is far more than a weapon. Since humans simply don't have claws or fangs, we're often at a loss when faced with anything too tough to bite or rip.

Enter the knife.

There is an almost infinite variety in knives and materials. Some fold and some don't. Some have blades that are long and flexible, and other examples are short and nasty. A blade is made for almost every task.

I have three personal favorites.

First is my fillet knife, which will lift the meat from the bones of most fish in less time that it takes to read this paragraph. The fillet knife has a long, flexible blade which bends to follow the fish's bones. As with all knives, the sharper the better.

My second knife is my on-board folding Buck knife, which is, at this moment, weighing down my back pocket. It goes where I go.

I've used my trusty pocketknife to remove splinters, cut rope, dress out deer and pry open jelly jars, but it sees heavy use as a letter opener.

My third favorite is a belt knife with a hollow ground edge. Except for deer hunting trips, it never sees much use, because it's just too big for most utility uses.

Far too many hunters take along a knife that is simply too big. A Bowie knife may look great on your belt, if you want to achieve the Tarzan look, but its about as useful to a hunter as a two-handed broadsword. Forget it.

Dressing out a deer is a sloppy job, and much of the cutting has to be done in pretty close quarters. A small folding Buck knife, one small enough for your finger to lay along the blade's back to serve as a guide, is much better for deer cleaning.

Take that as gospel from someone who's been bloodied to the elbows more than once. Icky work.

But no matter what style of knife you favor, it has to be sharp. There is no such thing as a knife that is TOO sharp. A keen edge will make any cutting smoother and quicker, with less chance of a slip which may ruin your work or your hand.

To sharpen a knife, you'll need a good quality sharpening stone. But the coarseness of the stone is the first consideration.

A very coarse stone is good only for removing burrs and to begin the sharpening process. But you simply can't put a shaving-quality edge on a knife with a coarse stone. The finer the stone, the finer your finished edge.

An oil stone, also called a wet stone, has a finer finish because the oil traps any removed particles and fills in the pores of the stone. But a rough oil stone is still too rough.

Personally I use a two-sided stone for sharpening most of my knives. One side is rough, for the "ugly" work, while the other side is much finer, for the finish work.

You sharpen a knife by trying to slice thin layers off the sharpening stone. Never pull a blade toward yourself, and I personally don't like making a circular motion on the stone. It's repetitive, but just keep slicing away, keeping your angle constant.

One trick for keeping a constant angle on the stone is to put a paper clip on the back edge of the blade. If your hands are steady enough, however, you can keep a fingertip in one spot and maintain the same angle throughout the process.

Too high an angle on the blade and your edge will never be very sharp, but it will be durable. Too low an angle and it will take forever to finish, but you'll be able to shave with the delicate edge you get. Try to find a compromise for a good edge.

Some blades were never meant for the sharpening stone. If your blade curves slightly inward from the body to the edge itself, you probably have a hollow-ground on your knife, which is very sharp but tough to produce. It takes a wheel to place a hollow-ground edge, and a visit to a flat sharpening stone will only put on half an edge, and a temporary one at that. Take your hollow-ground edge to a pro. My fillet knife is one such blade that needs professional attention.

As for the type of steel used, I'm not going to get into that. Instead, if you buy a "name brand" knife, you can be reasonably assured of quality steel. Gerber, Old-Timer, Buck and Schrade are just a few of the better-known names in knives.

But no matter what you carry, take good care of your knife. It's just a simple little item, known to man for thousands of years, but you never know when that humble pocketknife could be the difference between life and death, or between a rescue and a cold night in the woods.

You just never know.

- Tackle Box -

Tewbury's James "Bub" Manley got a pleasant surprise recently. After some 18 years of trying, Bub finally drew a doe permit this year.

The drawing for antlerless deer (doe) permits was held October 12, and notices were sent out shortly thereafter. In case your number came up and you didn't hear from the Division yet, here are the permit numbers. If you sent in your application, just compare the last number on your license to the deer hunting zone you applied for:

Zone One: 0, 3, 6, 9; Zone Two: 0, 2; Zone Three: 0, 2, 3, 4, 7, 8; Zone Four: 3, 9; Zone Five: 3, 4; Zone Six: 2, 3, 5, 8; Zone Seven: 3, 5, 6; Zone Eight: 1, 2, 6; Zone Nine: 4, 7; Zone Ten: 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 9; Zone Eleven: 5, 7, 8; Zone Twelve: 0, 2, 3, 4, 8, 9; Zones Thirteen and Fourteen: All license numbers submitted were granted antlerless permits.

Jen ready to return

Wilmington volleyball co-captain Jen O'Donnell (right) gets a good look at this Lowell double spike attempt in MVC action last week. Lowell posted a 2-1 win, but the Wildcats came back to defeat Tewksbury 2-1 Monday night in the final match of the season for both teams.

Now, just because your number was drawn doesn't mean you have carte blanche for hunting does. Call the state and find out where your permit is -- you've got to have your permit in hand when you bring a doe to the checkstation, or else the nice officer will ask ugly questions before writing out your ticket. Call (508) 366-4470 with any questions. The Merrimack River Watershed Council will have a public bulletin board soon to keep the public up to date on all things river related. The bulletin board will be located on the 7th tee at Trull Brook Golf Course and a public unveiling of the new 3' by 6' board will take place Friday, Nov. 4, around 9:45 a.m.

Women's basketball league

The North Suburban YMCA is once again offering area women an opportunity to participate in a competitive, structured basketball league by opening registration for its 1988-89 Women's Basketball League.

The league will be made up of six to eight teams playing a 10 game schedule. Playoffs will be held, with seeding determined by team standings at the end of the regular season. Linda Silverstri and Ben Cole, league commissioners, recommend that interested women register as a team. Those players not assigned to a team will be placed on teams through a draft system.

Games will be held on Sunday evenings from 4:00 - 7:45, starting December 11 and running through March 5. Cost is $500.00 per team or $60.00 per individual.

Anyone wishing to join the league or find out more about it is urged to attend an informational meeting, Sunday, November 13 at 6 p.m. at the North Suburban YMCA, 137 Lexington St., Woburn.

For additional information, contact Linda Silverstri at 935-3270.

"Wolves do not eat grandmothers"

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

"What is it with these people? I can smell hot dogs everywhere. Eighteen hundred staring eyes, 900 open mouths. Why are they howling like that?"

"This is wild." Shaman's thoughts as he faced hundreds of Wakefield students recently were known only to him. But his message was simple enough: "Wolves do not eat grandmothers."

Looking him straight in the unblinking eye, you might find that message hard to swallow. But if you listen to Pamela Brown or Kent and Dana Weber, the other members of his pack, you might almost consent to let him lick your hand.

Shaman, a six-month-old Northern Rocky Mountain timber wolf is quite the ambassador for "Mission: Wolf."

His family has played to sellout crowds at Carnegie Hall and the Smithsonian, traveled to Congress and to thousands of schools in every state, rubbed noses with Donahue and Captain Kangaroo.

Brown and the Webers were Shaman's constant companions at Wakefield's Atwell, Dolbeare, Franklin, Greenwood, Hurd, Montrose, and Yeuell Schools. Even the junior high kids settled down momentarily to hear his story, the gift of Esther Nowell and PAWS, a group which advocates constantly for the protection of animals in Wakefield society — and far beyond.

"For many years, I have had the good fortune of traveling all over the country taking a wolf to school," begins Brown, tempering her remarks to each audience. "Now you might think that's kind of a strange thing to be doing, but there's a reason for it.

"Wolves are an endangered species," she continues. "They are disappearing from our world. There are a lot of endangered species these days — the wolf is really symbolic of what is happening to our live animals and our wilderness. "It seems like we've forgotten how to share this world with the wild things, and I don't think any of you wants to hand over a world to your own children that has no eagles, whales, wolves, mountain lions, manatee."

The non-profit Mission: Wolf (P.O. Box 211, Silver Cliff, Colo. 81249) has been featured in two National Geographic hardcover books. The first deals with the wolves' trip to Congress to lobby for the Endangered Species Act; the second, "Wildlife Alert" shows Shaman's cousin Slick in a Connecticut classroom.

Operating so far east on a shoestring and from a van, Mission: Wolf (the Webers) and the Clem and Jethro Lecture Service (Brown) are sources of everything you'd ever want to know about wolves and how to help a vanishing species.

The rite of passage to the "privilege of meeting a wolf" is the viewing of "Death of a Legend," a 20-minute film which introduced the Wakefield kids to wolves hunting, eating, mating, giving birth, raising their puppies, meeting man.

"At the end of the film, you're going to see the tragedy of what we are doing to wolves, our wild things and our environment. You're not going to like the end but it's really true," says Brown. "You don't have to watch it if you don't want to, but I'm going to explain it to you when it's all over."

Which she does. "Those were hunters," she says. "Up in Alaska, we have maybe 3,000 to 5,000 wolves left, and the numbers are going down every year. The fur hunters find the wolves from the air by plane, land and shoot them. They skin them and sell their furs for a whole bunch of money for fur coats."

"We're not still simple people who live off the land and need that wolf fur. We've got lots of other ways to keep warm. A fur WOLVES ARE AN ENDANGERED SPECIES, so shy you wouldn't believe it. They are not into attacking people — and they do not eat grandmothers." That's the message which Shaman (on the right) and his friends from "Mission: Wolf" are spreading throughout the country. This student at Wakefield's Greenwood School looks mighty skeptical.

PART TWO

Our gallant friend who didn't want to offend this woman of his dreams retired to the couch, dreaming of the night when he no longer had to sleep on the couch. Then all-out disaster struck. He explained, "I woke up some time in the morning and discovered a huge white cat sleeping on my face! A huge white cat!"

This didn't seem to be that big a deal, until he indicated further: "I am deathly allergic to cat dander. I couldn't open my eyes, my skin started to itch and then the sneezing began. I thought I'd died and gone south. I managed to pull myself together, woke up my computer date and told her that I had to leave. She seemed upset. I told her why, and she proceeded to inform me that if I couldn't accept the cat, then she couldn't accept me. I left her apartment in tears, sneezing and itching. It wasn't until early afternoon before I got back to normal. So much for computer dating services."

Bars and night clubs are probably the worst places to meet members of the opposite sex these days. There can be exceptions to the rule, however. Take the time this past summer when a friend of mine, Loring Young, of Woburn, and I spent a weekend at Loring's summer condo in Gilford, N.H. Loring had his lovely three-year-old daughter, Lindsey, with him for the weekend. Lindsey remained at the condo with another friend of ours for the afternoon while

Feel good about yourself
AFTER A MASTECTOMY

Women need to be especially concerned with the weight and balance of a breast form. If not properly balanced, poor posture and discomfort can result.

It is best to see a trained fitting specialist and have professional advice when selecting a breastform and bra. There is no reason for any woman who has had a mastectomy to feel self-conscious about her appearance or not to look just as she did before her surgery.

Case Surgical Appliance offers a wide selection of forms and bras in a variety of shapes and styles from light fluff filled to the natural weighted silicone breastform. A trained mastectomy specialist is available to discuss your fitting needs, private and confidential.

By appointment only.
We will bill Medicare for you. Medicare allows one breast form a year and two bras every six months.
A 10% discount with this ad for all other insurances.
A 20% discount on all new cruise mastectomy swimwear.

Muscle Sculpturing
The art of reshaping and toning your body by using your large muscles in very highly concentrated, precise and minute movements. These exercises are geared for the person that is seriously interested in a life-long commitment in maintaining a healthy toned body without a strenuous workout or use of any machinery. They do not add bulk, but rather strengthen and tone your body. They are carefully designed to strengthen your back, and reduce any risk of injury in any other area of your body. Posture will be greatly improved and results are felt and seen in as little as six sessions. These exercises are hard but they work! As with any new program, you should consult your doctor if you have an existing medical condition or are pregnant.

Karate - for all ages!

Karate is an art form for health, confidence and self-defense; a challenge for all to extend their limitations. For youth it fosters pride. For adults, a refreshing change of pace from a hectic world. For women, especially, it provides freedom from fear of violence. Size, age, and physical strength are not important; this ancient art form has something for everyone. Japanese Shotokan style karate is taught by black belt instructors. Family rates available. Member of the North American Karate Federation.

Important Information Please Read

Registration Policies
1. Registrations are accepted through the second week of classes; register in advance for all classes.
2. We do not confirm registrations so please note the date, time and place of your first class and we will see you there.
3. Full payment must be made when you register. We cannot hold spaces for you without full payment. You may use your MasterCard or Visa card to pay.
4. Full refunds are made if the program or class is cancelled by the YMCA.
5. Credit vouchers less non-refundable $5.00 service fee will be given to anyone requesting a refund prior to the second class session. No cash refunds will be made.

Program Registration Membership Policy
Program participants may enroll for any class at the membership rate, so long as their membership is current and does not expire during the program session. To save time during program registration, we suggest that you take out or renew your memberships before open registration begins. New memberships must be purchased by the time of registration in order to be eligible for the member rate on a class.

Make-up Classes
1. In the event of inclement weather we may have to cancel programs and classes. When this is done we will make every effort to reschedule the class before the end of the session. If we are not able to do this, credit vouchers will be given for the next program session.
2. When the Woburn Public Schools are closed all YMCA programs and classes are cancelled. Announcements will be made over WHDH, WBZ and WEEI.

Y's Pre-Registration Privilege
Due to the progressive nature of our Aquatics, gymnastics and pre-school programs, it is our policy to give registration priority to those persons currently enrolled in the above-mentioned programs. Those wishing to remain in the same class on the same day and time may pre-register during peak "week" week for the next session. Those wishing to change the class day or time for the next session may do so on the Saturday of Peak "Week" starting at 12 noon.

Two Ways To Register
1. IN PERSON
To register in person, stop by the YMCA.
2. BY PHONE
Phone registrations will be accepted between 1:00 and 5:00 PM if you would like to pay by Visa or MasterCard. Please have your card number and expiration ready. Receipts will not be given, so please make note of the time and day.

coat looks a lot better on a wolf than on any of us."

Brown describes what a wolf is really like, who Shaman is, what he represents. "Kent and Dana Weber have a wolf sanctuary high in the Colorado mountains — they take in wolves and wolf dogs that people don't want to keep," she tells the kids.

And she gives them — wide-eyed, open-mouthed, mostly silent — "instructions on how to act when you meet a wolf." "First of all, I want you to understand there is no true case of a wild healthy wolf ever attacking anybody in North America," she says. "Please don't be afraid. I know you've all read 'Little Red Riding Hood.' Wolves do not eat grandmothers — wolves are not mean, vicious, or just waiting to get you.

"The way they really are is shy and afraid of people. They are so shy you wouldn't believe it. It takes a very special wolf to even be able to come into a room like this. Most wolves you couldn't even get to come in the door," she continues. "Shaman has been going around the country with us, visiting the public since he was two weeks

SIX-MONTH-OLD SHAMAN LOOKS about ready for his nap, but Wakefield's Greenwood School students are wide-awake and full of questions for Dana Weber and the other members of "Mission:Wolf" who visited old. He was just born on May 1st. He's still a baby, but he's a very big baby.

"What I need from you is quiet. The Indian people tell us that wolves' ears are so sensitive they can hear the clouds passing overhead. We've got to keep this room nice and quiet or we'll scare him, and all he'll try to do is drag Kent and Dana right back out the door. We won't ask him to stay in here because we don't want to frighten him.

"Just pretend for one minute that you're a very shy wolf. Imagine what it would be like to walk into a room full of about 900 people. We don't want him to get nervous and upset — we want him to think people are gentle and kind."

Shaman enters on a chain, looking like your average neighborhood dog — except for his eyes.

"Are we going to get to pet him?" asks one child.

"No, he's too young and too playful," says Brown. "He wouldn't mean to hurt anybody, but we don't want to take any chances because we can't watch every one of you.

"I know he looks a lot like a dog," she continues. "Because that's what a wolf is — the original wild dog of North America. They are cousins of the coyote, the fox and our domestic dogs. Your dog's behavior is really wolf behavior, but dog behavior has been changed by living with people.

"I don't want you to think he's a pet — Shaman is not a pet. A lot of people see him and say 'Oh boy, would I love to have one of those.' Well, believe me, you sure would be sorry.

"No wild thing makes a good pet, and what people find out is you can't let a wolf loose in your house. They're much too strong. They think everything in your house is a toy, and they'll tear it to pieces, just for fun.

"They won't be your super watchdogs. They're afraid of people so if anything bad happened to your house, the wolf would be the first one to run. Wolves can run 40 miles an hour at top speed, and jump eight feet without even running. Most people don't have fences to contain these animals."

"What do you feed him? How often does he eat? Does the several Wakefield schools recently. Esther Nowell and PAWS made the highly successful visit possible (or should we say "pawsible"?)

chain choke him? How long does he live? How many wolves do you have? Is there always someone there to watch them at the sanctuary? How can you tell the oldest in the pack? How can you tell a girl from a boy?"

"When we're on the road like we are this month, we travel in a van with a cage built in the back especially for Shaman where he can ride loose in his own space.

We have two dogs traveling with us as his companions, and they make him feel comfortable. They're older than he is, so he listens to them," says Brown.

"We take them to tennis courts while we're on the road so they can run around loose and get their exercise. In Colorado, he stays in a wolf sanctuary high

BEAT IT

Parents and kids alike will be spellbound by the talents of well-known performer "Rob the Drummer" during his one-evening only show at the Stoneham High School, 149 Franklin Street, Stoneham, on Friday, November 4 beginning at 7:30 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the door and will be $3.50 each. Proceeds from the Stoneham Middle School PTL-sponsored performance will benefit Middle School students.

WINCHESTER PLAYERS

The Winchester Players presents Arthur Miller's drama "All My Sons," directed by Karen Barton, at Micalf Hall Theater, the Unitarian Church, corner of Main Street and Mystic Valley Parkway, Winchester, November 5, 11 and 12 at 8:15 p.m. Tickets are $6 general admission; 4 seniors and students. For reservations call Box Office (617) 721-4333. (November 4th performance is the Winchester Chamber of Commerce Benefit Performance; all seats are $10; reservations through the Winchester Chamber of Commerce). Curtain time for all performances is 8:15 p.m.

BABYSITTER TRAINING

A responsible babysitter is in demand! Babysitters assume a great amount of responsibility when caring for young children. Take a step in becoming better equipped for these skills.

Choate/Symmes Health Services is offering a "Babysitter Training" program for girls and boys, between the ages of 11-15 years during the month of November. Topics to be covered in class include: fire and police safety, home security, telephone tips, "Chokesaving" and basic first aid.

This program also benefits those young people who have younger brothers and sisters as well as those who will be without adult supervision after school — who will learn how to deal with emergency situations.

"Babysitter Training" will be held on Mondays, November 7, 14, 21 and 28, from 3:15 to 5:30

WOMEN WHO LOVE TOO MUCH

A one-day experimental workshop for women who are drawn to painful relationships will be led by psychotherapist Fran Meline. This workshop is designed to help women become aware of how their typical responses contribute to the painful or abusive aspects of their relationships. Participants learn new behavior which results in healthier, more satisfying relationships.

The workshop will be held November 5 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Advanced registration required. For further information, call (617) 924-4133.

HOLIDAY SHOPPERS FAIR
Christmas is coming! Make a dent in that holiday list when you attend the Holiday Shoppers Fair at Stoneham High School on Saturday, November 19 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The fair is sponsored by the Robin Hood School PTO and features various vendors and crafts people who will display their wares. For more information, call Sue Doscher at 438-6334.

STOP SMOKING

You can become a nonsmoker in time for the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout, to be observed on November 17, by joining the Stop Smoking Clinic at New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH), Stoneham.

The Stop Smoking Clinic is designed to help smokers get through the difficult withdrawal process and successfully kick the habit. Taught by a multidisciplinary group of health-care professionals, the program includes an introductory session, a five-day cessation period and follow-up sessions. The program begins Thursday, November 10, from 7 to 9 p.m.

The fee for the program will be reduced with a physician's prescription. For more information, or to register for the Stop Smoking Clinic, call the NEMH Center for Health Promotion at (617) 979-7057.

MADORE CHORALE

The Paul Madore Chorale opens its 1988-89 concert season on Sunday, November 13. The performance includes Gounod's Gaillia and Brahms' Ein Deutches Requiem. Complete with orchestra, soloists for this sole performance are: Soprano Ellen Chickering and Baritone Richard Malone.

The program will be presented at St. Anne's Church, Jefferson Avenue, Salem, at 3:30 p.m. Tickets are $10 for general admission and $8 for senior citizens. For reservations call: (508) 531-4446, (508) 774-0030, or (617) 598-0690.

Volunteers needed

The Museum of Comparative Zoology in Cambridge is looking for volunteers to do educational programs for school children. Topics range from fossils, to endangered species, to rocks and minerals, to Mayan culture.

But you don't necessarily need to know about these things - all you need is flexibility and an interest in natural history! We provide the training in a six-week program that begins Tuesday, November 15th.

Please call 495-2341 in advance for applications and further information.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Louis O'Malley of Winchester told me that the secret of his popularity is attributed to one particular word, and Lou explained it this way. "Years ago," he said, "when someone made a statement with which I adamantly disagreed, I would almost shout baloney!" I lost a lot of friends that way because many people would avoid me like the plague. I learned to substitute the word "amazing" for "baloney," and I then enjoyed the lasting friendship of many people. I borrowed that wonderful system from Lou. Only yesterday, Kevin Fisher said to me, "I read your column every week, and I can never find the time to send a note to your editor and tell him how much I like Woodchips." There was a golden opportunity to use the word "amazing." I guess you'd call it a Freudian slip, because I lost my cool and blurted out a resounding "baloney!"

Apprentice barber Bob Giguere said to George Guyette, "Would you like your beard trimmed?" "No," he snapped, "just cut a hole in the middle of it so my sweetie pie can see the necktie she gave me for my birthday."

Doreen Gale received her Master's degree in child psychology from Northeastern University. I told her that maybe I should take a course in that science myself. An experiment I tried at a birthday party at Uncle John Shea's house in North Reading was a dismal failure. I held a silver dollar and a quarter in the palm of my hand, and then I asked my five-year-old cousin Mark Aloisi to take one of the coins and keep

it. I was indeed surprised when he chose the quarter. I repeated the test many times, always with the same result — Mark would choose the smaller of the two coins. Uncle John took Mark aside and said, "Mark, don't you know that the larger coin is worth a dollar and is four times more than the smaller one?" "Of course I know that," Mark replied with a wry smile, "but so far I've gotten $12.50 from that stupid Woodchipper!"

Mike Gaffney got a job in a ceramic factory. He weeds out the "cracked pots." Gail O'Malley was telling my sister Maureen Tully how much trouble her son, Tommy gives her, getting up so that he won't be late for school each morning. "Oh," declared Maureen, "my son, Dennis is no trouble at all — I just pick up the cat and toss it on the bed, and Dennis gets up right away." "How in the world does that work?" "Easy, Dennis sleeps with his dog!" There's one good thing about my wife, Kathy's singing — we haven't any mice in the house.

A road construction crew is working on my street. The foreman rang my bell this morning and said to me, "Could you please ask the lady who is singing if she would please practice at night — my crew has stopped working three times thinking they heard the coffee break whistle. My late father Giovanni told my four brothers and four sisters many times, 'Love your neighbors, but make sure you keep those fences up!'"

We can expect snow any day now. My neighbor, Paul Rao, just returned the lawn mower he borrowed in April. I arranged a blind date for Al Harring. He was to meet a lovely girl named Edith in Woburn Sq. Al went there at the appointed time, walked up, and asked a young lady, "Are you Edith?" She looked at Al and said, "Are you Al?" "Yes, I am." "Well, I'm sorry," she said, "I'm not Edith!"

Ponce de Leon looked in vain for the Fountain of Youth in St. Petersburg, Fla. Any dancer could have told him that it can be found on any dance floor in the world. Almost every Saturday night, men would shave, shower and shine their shoes and the women (God bless them) would curl their hair, iron their best dresses, put on their dancing slippers, and it would be off to Kimball's Starlite, the Commodore in Lowell, Spanish Gables in Revere, Mosley's on the Charles, or State Ballroom in Boston. I don't understand, however, some of these modern dances, where one twists, turns, jumps, bobs and weaves without touching his or her partner. Last week when the music stopped, a young lady said to me, "Thanks for the dance." "What dance?" I exclaimed, "I was trying to get across the floor to the Coke machine." My niece Elaine said, "I'll bet you've never seen dancing like this when you were young." "I did once," I replied, "but the State Police raided the place. Remember, folks, 'short visits make long friends.'"

My Aunt Nora from Wilmington wasn't feeling well, so two women friends of hers came to visit. After an hour of chit chatting, they decided to leave, saying, "We hope you feel better — we'll be praying for you." "I'll thank you to wash the sink full of dishes — I can do my own praying!" That's a girl, Aunt Nora!

Charles Haney, and Frank Arena.

wife, Maude, on their 60th wedding anniversary. God bless you. They are from Stoneham. Also, Frank Phillips, Dick Belanger, Skip Medugno, John Chaplain, Diane and Mich

WOMEN WHO LOVE TOO MUCH
A one-day experimental workshop for women who are drawn to painful relationships will be led by psychotherapist Fran Meline. This workshop is designed to help women become aware of how their typical responses contribute to the painful or abusive aspects of their relationships. Participants learn new behavior which results in healthier, more satisfying relationships.

The workshop will be held November 5 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Advanced registration required. For further information, call (617) 924-4133.

HOLIDAY SHOPPERS FAIR
Christmas is coming! Make a dent in that holiday list when you attend the Holiday Shoppers Fair at Stoneham High School on Saturday, November 19 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The fair is sponsored by the Robin Hood School PTO and features various vendors and crafts people who will display their wares. For more information, call Sue Doscher at 438-6334.

STOP SMOKING

You can become a nonsmoker in time for the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout, to be observed on November 17, by joining the Stop Smoking Clinic at New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH), Stoneham.

The Stop Smoking Clinic is designed to help smokers get through the difficult withdrawal process and successfully kick the habit. Taught by a multidisciplinary group of health-care professionals, the program includes an introductory session, a five-day cessation period and follow-up sessions. The program begins Thursday, November 10, from 7 to 9 p.m.

The fee for the program will be reduced with a physician's prescription. For more information, or to register for the Stop Smoking Clinic, call the NEMH Center for Health Promotion at (617) 979-7057.

SINGLES DANCE

On Friday, November 18, at the K of C Hall, 2068 Main St., Route 38 in Tewksbury, a singles dance will be held from 8 p.m. to midnight. Admission is $5.

For more information call 438-8277.

DEPOT SQUARE ARTISTS

Depot Square Artists, Main Gallery - New England inspired florals, seascapes and landscapes expressed in watercolor and egg tempera by Nancy C. Eddy and oils on canvas by Kate Fournaris which record her impressions of Boston's MBTA Orange Line as it is dismantled, and the urban neighborhoods long hidden by its shadow and now revealed by light. Nov. 1 - Nov. 27. Opening reception, Sunday, Nov. 6, 3 to 6 p.m. Open to the public. No admission charge. Extended hours: Tuesday-Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and by appointment. Downstairs at 1837 Massachusetts Avenue, Lexington (phone 671-863-1597).

CANAL ASSOCIATION

The Middlesex Canal Association will hold a general meeting at the Lowell State Heritage Park, Mack Building, 25 Shattuck Street, Lowell, at 2 p.m. on Sunday, November 13 in the upstairs meeting room. The meeting is open to the public and free of charge.

For further information, contact David Allan Fitch, (508) 663-7848, or write the Middlesex Canal Association, P.O. Box 333, Billerica, Mass. 01821.

MADORE CHORALE The Paul Madore Chorale opens its 1988-89 concert season on Sunday, November 13. The performance includes Gounod's Gallia and Brahms' Ein Deutches Requiem. Complete with orchestra, soloists for this sole performance are: Soprano Ellen Chickering and Baritone Richard Malone.

The program will be presented at St. Anne's Church, Jefferson Avenue, Salem, at 3:30 p.m. Tickets are $10 for general admission and $8 for senior citizens. For reservations call: (508) 531-4446, (508) 774-0030, or (617) 598-0690.

Volunteers needed

The Museum of Comparative Zoology in Cambridge is looking for volunteers to do educational programs for school children. Topics range from fossils, to endangered species, to rocks and minerals, to Mayan culture.

But you don't necessarily need to know about these things - all you need is flexibility and an interest in natural history! We provide the training in a six-week program that begins Tuesday, November 15th.

Please call 495-2341 in advance for applications and further information.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Louis O'Malley of Winchester told me that the secret of his popularity is attributed to one particular word, and Lou explained it this way. "Years ago," he said, "when someone made a statement with which I adamantly disagreed, I would almost shout baloney!" I lost a lot of friends that way because many people would avoid me like the plague. I learned to substitute the word "amazing" for "baloney," and I then enjoyed the lasting friendship of many people. I borrowed that wonderful system from Lou. Only yesterday, Kevin Fisher said to me, "I read your column every week, and I can never find the time to send a note to your editor and tell him how much I like Woodchips." There was a golden opportunity to use the word "amazing." I guess you'd call it a Freudian slip, because I lost my cool and blurted out a resounding "baloney!"

Apprentice barber Bob Giguere said to George Guyette, "Would you like your beard trimmed?" "No," he snapped, "just cut a hole in the middle of it so my sweetie pie can see the necktie she gave me for my birthday."

Doreen Gale received her Master's degree in child psychology from Northeastern University. I told her that maybe I should take a course in that science myself. An experiment I tried at a birthday party at Uncle John Shea's house in North Reading was a dismal failure. I held a silver dollar and a quarter in the palm of my hand, and then I asked my five-year-old cousin Mark Aloisi to take one of the coins and keep

it. I was indeed surprised when he chose the quarter. I repeated the test many times, always with the same result - Mark would choose the smaller of the two coins. Uncle John took Mark aside and said, "Mark, don't you know that the larger coin is worth a dollar and is four times more than the smaller one?" "Of course I know that," Mark replied with a wry smile, "but so far I've gotten $12.50 from that stupid Woodchipper!"

Mike Gaffney got a job in a ceramic factory. He weeds out the "cracked pots." Gail O'Malley was telling my sister Maureen Tully how much trouble her son, Tommy gives her, getting up so that he won't be late for school each morning. "Oh," declared Maureen, "my son, Dennis is no trouble at all - I just pick up the cat and toss it on the bed, and Dennis gets up right away." "How in the world does that work?" "Easy, Dennis sleeps with his dog!" There's one good thing about my wife, Kathy's singing - we haven't any mice in the house.

A road construction crew is working on my street. The foreman rang my bell this morning and said to me, "Could you please ask the lady who is singing if she would please practice at night - my crew has stopped working three times thinking they heard the coffee break whistle. My late father Giovanni told my four brothers and four sisters many times, 'Love your neighbors, but make sure you keep those fences up!'"

We can expect snow any day now. My neighbor, Paul Rao, just returned the lawn mower he borrowed in April. I arranged a blind date for Al Harring. He was to meet a lovely girl named Edith in Woburn Sq. Al went there at the appointed time, walked up, and asked a young lady, "Are you Edith?" She looked at Al and said, "Are you Al?" "Yes, I am." "Well, I'm sorry," she said, "I'm not Edith!"

Ponce de Leon looked in vain for the Fountain of Youth in St. Petersburg, Fla. Any dancer could have told him that it can be found on any dance floor in the world. Almost every Saturday night, men would shave, shower and shine their shoes and the women (God bless them) would curl their hair, iron their best dresses, put on their dancing slippers, and it would be off to Kimball's Starlite, the Commodore in Lowell, Spanish Gables in Revere, Mosley's on the Charles, or State Ballroom in Boston. I don't understand, however, some of these modern dances, where one twists, turns, jumps, bobs and weaves without touching his or her partner. Last week when the music stopped, a young lady said to me, "Thanks for the dance." "What dance?" I exclaimed, "I was trying to get across the floor to the Coke machine." My niece Elaine said, "I'll bet you've never seen dancing like this when you were young." "I did once," I replied, "but the State Police raided the place. Remember, folks, 'short visits make long friends.'"

My Aunt Nora from Wilmington wasn't feeling well, so two women friends of hers came to visit. After an hour of chit chatting, they decided to leave, saying, "We hope you feel better - we'll be praying for you." "I'll thank you to wash the sink full of dishes - I can do my own praying!" That's a girl, Aunt Nora!

Woodchips Personality Winners - Bob Forsyth of Billerica (Bob is a Little League baseball coach but a Major League gentleman), Charles Bilante, star salesman at Ostuni's in Burlington, Tanya Canada of Woburn, John Elliot of North Reading, Betty Vullo, N. Reading Town Clerk, Marsha MacEachern, Kristen Greene, Elizabeth Prenney, Anthony Murphy, Stephen O'Leary, John J. O'Neill, Urilla Cheverie, Margie Salt, Charlene Malek, Missy Stanley, Sandy Ball, Traci Wood, Karl Berg, all from N. Reading, Roberta Shea, Al Conti, Annamae Arseneault, Lt. Charles Haney, and Frank Arena.

Woodchips congratulates Mr. Mark French and his lovely wife, Maude, on their 60th wedding anniversary. God bless you. They are from Stoneham. Also, Frank Philips, Dick Belanger, Skip Medugno, John Chaplain, Diane and Mich

Desctaux, Dave Oram, and Maryanne Gorman, who painted the St. Patrick's Color Guard bus the traditional green and white. I recall when I went out to

GENERAL HELP

$8.05* STARTING PAY OR MORE IF YOU HAVE EXPERIENCE

At ANALOG DEVICES, our Microelectronics Division is growing, opening a number of opportunities for 3RD SHIFT ASSEMBLY OPERATORS. 3RD SHIFT HOURS ARE 11:30 P.M. TO 7:30 A.M.

Just consider these advantages of working a 3rd shift:

- Accommodate your family schedule and avoid day care bills
- Run your errands on weekdays so you can save weekends for relaxing
- Opportunity to attend school during the day while we pay the tuition
- Traffic-free commute

In addition to excellent starting salaries we also offer an excellent compensation and benefits package.

If you can demonstrate a positive work history, an ability to read and speak English and a willingness to work well with others, we'd like to talk to you. Call the Human Resources Department at (617) 935-5191 or stop by any weekday between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. to fill out an application. The Human Resources office also accepts applications on Monday evenings until 7:30 p.m.

BODYBUILDING COMPETITION

On Saturday, November 12, at the Lowell High School in Lowell, CD Promotions and New You Fitness Center of Lowell presents the exciting AAU Mr./Ms. Merrimack Valley Classic bodybuilding competition.

In its 6th year the Merrimack Valley Classic is an area competition open to all bodybuilders. It has grown dramatically over the past three years and has become one of the most talked about competitions in New England. Winners of the Merrimack Valley Classic have gone on to compete on a national level.

All competitors must check in on Saturday, November 12th by 12:30 p.m. with pre-judging beginning at 1:30 p.m. and the finals, free posing, awards beginning at 4:30 p.m. Ticket prices are: $10 - VIP seats; $9 - General Admission.

Guest posing will be Matt DuFresne, 1988 AAU Mr. USA. For the second year in a row the major sponsor of this year's competition is New You Fitness Center of Lowell, one of the most complete fitness centers in the Merrimack Valley. Joining New You Fitness as associate sponsors of this event are Tropical Tan of Tewksbury, an ultra modern tanning facility, and DR Fitness, an exciting high energy health club in Nashua, N.H.

Once again the Merrimack Valley Classic promises to offer a day of exciting competition. This event is an excellent opportunity for athletes to compete in a first rate AAU bodybuilding competition. For further information, contact Craig Dadoly, P.O. Box 243, Dracut, Ma. 01826 or call (508) 441-2137.

the parking lot after the St. Patrick's Day party at the Beaumont VFW Post. I was shocked to see my car painted a kelly green. I ran into the hall and shouted, "Who's the wise guy who painted my car green?" 6 ft. 3 in. Larry Ahern from Woburn came over to me and said, "I did, and what are you going to do about it?" Being a devout coward, I meekly replied, "Oh, nothing, Larry, I just thought I'd come back in here and tell you that the first coat is dry!"

"Who won the church raffle, who won the Cadillac?" I asked Fr. Vincent Gianni. "The bishop did, wasn't he lucky?" "Who won the Buick?" "The monsignor did, wasn't he lucky?" I was about to give up, but I asked, "Who won the last prize, who won the Chevrolet?" "Oh, I did," he said, "wasn't I lucky?" "By the way," he said, "how many tickets did you buy, Woodchipper?" "Not a darn one," I exclaimed, "and wasn't I lucky?" A verse by Emily

Dickinson is exactly the reason for Woodchips. "If I can stop one heart from breaking and help one fallen robin into its nest again, I shall not have lived in vain."

Mike Cook was looking at a family album with his mother. In one photo, a handsome man with dark wavy hair was in the picture. "Who is that?" Mike asked. "That's your father." "Oh yeah?" exclaimed the skeptical young man, "then who the heck is that bald-headed guy smoking a pipe in the parlor?"

Smith is the most common name in the USA, followed by Johnson, Williams, Brown, Jones and "hey, you!"

Everyone is boss in my house. Kathy bosses the kids, they boss the dog, and I can say anything I want to the parakeets.

I was sliding, gliding and twirling a beautiful blonde bombshell at a Woburn Elks dance. Kathy tapped me on the shoulder and said, "Remind me to put a steak on your black eye when we get home." "What the heck are you talking about, I haven't got a black eye?" "Listen here, Fatso," she exclaimed, "we're not home yet." Star of the week - Martha Burns of Woburn.
